SUSPECT CHARGED IN FERRY TOLL THEFT

NANAIMO—(Special to the Times)—RCMP today charged Malcolm John McGregor with theft of over $50 from the B.C. Toll Ferry system.

A police spokesman said McGregor, about 28, was summoned to appear in Nanaimo police court, July 30 at 10 a.m.

He is not in custody.

WARD:

'I Liked Pretty Girls Around Me'

(Compiled From Times News Services)

LONDON—Dr. Stephen Ward took the stand in his own defence at his vice trial today and admitted to being a thoroughly immoral man who liked to have girls around.

His lawyer, James Burge, said the 50-year-old osteopath and artist freely admitted that he lived a Bohemian life and had affairs with many women, but strongly denied the accusations of procuring and living off the earnings of prostitutes.

Later Ward testified that "being an artist, I liked to have pretty girls around me."

"And you liked to have intimacy with them?" asked Burge.

"Indeed."

"You are not disguising the fact that you are a thoroughly immoral man?"

"No."

Ward took the oath after the court's lunch break on the fourth day of the trial.

Spectators threw two eggs at Christine Keeler and booed her angrily as she left the court after giving further testimony in the trial's morning session.

Ward admitted the 21-year-old Miss Keeler lived with him. But he said her stories that he induced her to procure girls for him were not true.

He said Mandy Rice-Davies' stories about him also were untrue. He denied her sworn testimony that he had a two-way mirror in one of his flats. It was only a hole in the wall, he insisted, and he tried to get it fixed. Two witnesses in the case have testified that it existed and that Mandy broke it in a tantrum one day.

Asked about Vickie Barrett, a prostitute who testified Wednesday she had whipped nude men at orgies in the flat, Ward replied:

"Her whole evidence was a tissue of disgusting lies from beginning to end."

Burge asked the jury to "preserve the balance between a man who is charged with a series of revolting offences and a prosecution which is based more largely, you might think, upon prejudice than upon actual evidence."

Burge said the defence would show that Ward lived two lives. "You will hear first, and this is accepted, that he is a skilled and successful osteopath earning substantial sums of money."

Ward said the defence would show that Ward lived two lives. "You will hear first, and this is accepted, that he is a skilled and successful osteopath earning substantial sums of money."

He said Mandy Rice-Davies' drawing and painting various people, many of them distinguished.

Ward said when he first met Christine 3½ years ago he himself was then living in a London flat and at a cottage on the Cliveden estate of Viscount Astor. He said the cottage cost him only £1 a year—"It was virtually derelict when I took it over and I did it up."

'A Life That May Not Appeal to You'

"And you will hear of his second life, a life that may not appeal to you and quite clearly does not appeal to many people, that of a Bohemian, a man who is a talented artist and who will not flinch from telling you that he is very highly sexed and indeed has had affairs with a great many women."

Ward said that, in addition to the money from his practice, he earned considerable sums from

Historic Accord Made in Moscow

(Times News Services)

MOSCOW—The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union today initialed a treaty banning nuclear weapons tests in the air, outer space and under water.

The historic agreement was signed by U.S. Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, British Science Minister Lord Hailsham and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The three spokesmen announced the conclusion of the pact after a three-hour meeting at the foreign ministry reception hall, Spiridonovka Palace.

Harriman told the reporters that they had completed "a very important work."

Gromyko told nearly 100 assembled reporters:

"The end has been successful. Let us consider this as a basis for further steps."

Said Hailsham: "It is the beginning of many good things."

The treaty was initialed in three separate copies — each passed to all the others so that they were signed, in a sense, simultaneously.

The three were seated at a large round table and exchanged some banter while the correspondents and photographers recorded the historic scene.

The correspondents were called in at 7:25 p.m. and told by Gromyko that the document had been initialed.

The correspondents, who had waited for over four hours in the street, asked why had it taken so long.

Gromyko replied: "We made plans for the future."

Harriman announced that the treaty will be signed in Moscow in the near future by Gromyko, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home.

The treaty does not include underground testing because of the failure of the Western nations and the Russians to agree on safeguards to detect violations.

The West and the Russians agree that each nation's scientific systems can detect detonation of a nuclear device above ground or under water. But the West contends underground nuclear explosions cannot be separated from earthquakes without inspection of the site.

The Soviet Union says scientific detection systems can make this distinction and refuses to admit foreign inspectors to its territory. The partial test ban was chosen as an avenue around this roadblock. It would end the threat of nuclear contamination of the atmosphere so feared by other nations.

Rusk Opens Bid For Congress Support

WASHINGTON (CP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk is engaged in an administration campaign to convince U.S. legislators that the partial nuclear test ban treaty worked out in Moscow negotiations would be a good thing.

Rusk was the administration's spokesman in two appearances on Capitol Hill Wednesday, first with members of the Senate armed services committee, and later with the Senate - House atomic energy committee.

After the closed-door sessions Rusk told reporters he had been "encouraged by the reaction," but added that "we have made no attempt at this stage to ask the committees for their views."

Some members of the armed services committee said they were sceptical about the test ban treaty. One of them, Senator Barry Goldwater (Rep., Ariz.) said he would vote against the treaty in the form Rusk submitted to the committee.

Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem., Wash.) said the committee's attitude was "cautiously sceptical."

Members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff appear to have been kept in the dark on details of the test-ban agreement almost until it was initialed.

Red China Unionist Blasts Test Treaty

TOKYO (UPI)—A Communist Chinese labor leader denounced the partial nuclear test ban agreement today as an "intrigue of American imperialism."

Chao Kuo-Chiang, secretary of All China's Federation of Trade Unions, made the remark at the convention of Japan's leftist labor alliance Sohyo (general council of labor unions). The convention was opened with 800 delegates present.

"A partial nuclear test ban is a trickery by the U.S. to push aside the over-all nuclear ban," Chao said. "The United States is making use of the partial test ban to ease the alertness of the peace-loving people for the world peace."

"Communist China and Japan are continuing a joint struggle against American imperialism and the Sohyo's energetic struggle against the proposed visits by U.S. nuclear submarines to Japanese ports is giving a stimulation to the anti-imperialism struggle in Asia and the Pacific area."

'West Should Study Contact With China'

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin said today the Western world should be examining means of making more contact with Communist China.

He told the Commons defence committee the government has formulated no new policy concerning diplomatic recognition of Red China.

"But we should be examining carefully the advantages of the kind of intercourse developed in the last 10 years with other Communist countries," he said.

The contracts he mentioned specifically were cultural exchanges, greater access to each other's territory and exchange of diplomatic missions.

"We have to give consideration, if we are to avoid war, to the means of providing a confrontation with China," the minister said.

Tugboat Founders, 2 Missing

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—Two men are missing and presumed drowned but another escaped in a lifeboat early today when the 38-foot Vancouver tug Scotch Fir sank while towing a boom.

Missing are the tug's skipper, Ken Hughes, 36, of North Surrey, B.C., and Ken Kasper, 16, of Aldergrove.

The survivor was Don Maxim of Vancouver. An RCMP officer quoted him as saying he was "at the wheel when he discovered the boat was suddenly starting to sink."

As the steel-hulled tug filled with water Maxim only had time to take to the vessel's lifeboat. He did not know if the others got off the tug. It took him four hours to row ashore and give the alarm.

An immediate air-sea search was launched. Early today an RCAF Albatross search plane spotted a life ring floating in the Strait near the scene. It was picked up by a search boat.

A Nanaimo tug was sent to stand by the log boom the Scotch Fir had been towing.

The Scotch Fir, owned by the Texada Towing Company of Vancouver, was the second tug lost by the company this year. The 50-foot Black Fir sank in seconds March 9 off Gower Point, 15 miles west of Vancouver and settled in 500 feet of water. Her three crew members survived but the wreck was never salvaged to determine the cause of the sinking.

Bill McMaster, general manager of the tug company, was unable to suggest what might have caused the Scotch Fir to go down but added: "When these steel hulls sink, they go down like a rock."

MISSION (CP)—RCMP, assisted by a dog, were searching the woods north of here today for 14-year-old Keith Hill of Vancouver, missing since Wednesday on a hike.

White Man Fears Loss of 'Crutch'

Travelling through Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, Harold Morrison, CP's Washington correspondent, has found that conversation with white Southerners almost always turns to the race crisis. This story tells why.

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The race crisis of the Deep South is like a cancer that eats into everything the white man does—every thought, every action.

He would rather not talk about it but inevitably it creeps into his conversation.

He is terrified by the prospect of social change that would remove what one Negro clergyman says is the white Southerner's sense of superiority—"the Negro crutch."

Military Role For Canada Aiding UN?

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said today major nations are groping toward a more civilized relationship and suggested that Canada's major military contribution in the long run will be to the United Nations.

International peace-keeping machinery "probably represents the wave of the future," he said in testimony before the Commons defence committee.

In a comprehensive survey of the relationships among defence, foreign and economic policy, Mr. Martin said that up to now the main emphasis in foreign and defence policies had to be on collective security.

"Since it would have been foolhardy indeed to rely exclusively on the (UN's) fragile international experiment in international peace keeping."

"But the nature of the threat is in transition. Under the umbrella of mutual deterrence, the major nations have been groping toward a more civilized relationship."

The contest will go on, but its arena will be increasingly in the ideological and trade spheres, with much attention being paid to winning the support of less-developed countries.

PEACE NEW PHASE

"The new phase on which we may be embarking shortly may offer new opportunities for developing the international peace keeping machinery envisaged in the (UN) charter. . . .

"The problem for a country like Canada will be to decide how much of our limited military resources to put into the deterrent forces which will have to be maintained for a long time to come and how much to devote to developing international machinery for the preservation of peace, conscious represents the wave of the future."

Mr. Martin's stress on conventional forces for UN duty is in line with present defence department thinking on possible creation of a tri-service, multi-purpose conventional force which could be used in a variety of roles, especially for the UN.

The minister said the principal purpose of the armed forces of all "responsible" powers has become one of deterring rather than winning major wars and of containing small ones by application of the minimum force needed to restore order.

Until there is substantial disarmament, with a parallel increase in the UN's peace-keeping capabilities, Canadian soldiers directed to targets elsewhere.

Defence Committee Invites Physicists

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of eight nuclear physicists from the University of Alberta have been invited to appear before the Commons defence committee Aug. 1, committee chairman Maurice Sauve (L — Des-de-la-Madeleine) announced today.

The physicists have said they dispute the theory advanced by Dr. George S. Field, chief scientist of the Defence Research Board, that a defensive nuclear warhead would "cook" and thus render harmless hydrogen bombs carried in bombers.

They say a defensive warhead would instead cause explosion over Canada of bombs directed to targets elsewhere.

Pay Hike Bill Friday

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today the government plans to introduce a bill Friday to increase pay and pensions for members of Parliament.

THIS WORLD OF OURS

People and Things

(Times News Services)

WASHINGTON—Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, has a job with a built-in conflict of interests.

Salinger must attempt to serve two masters: President Kennedy and the newspaper men who write about the president.

As a result, there are days when Salinger can't win. Wednesday was one of them.

Salinger and the White House press corps had two of their liveliest debates over two subjects:

PIERRE SALINGER

... bad day

There has been no furniture bought or anything.

Later, an air force spokesman acknowledged that, within the last month, "something less than $5,000" was spent to equip the suite with wall-to-wall carpeting, air conditioning and other odds and ends.

Kennedy prompted the Salinger press corps debate about the governors conference by telling visiting delegates from the American Legion "boys nation," a make-believe federal government:

"It seemed to me that you showed more initiative in some ways than the governors conference down in Miami and we are impressed by it."

The boys, who divided themselves into federalists and nationalist parties in the election they held Wednesday, had strong civil rights planks in their platforms.

Many reporters thought Kennedy was implying criticism of the governors, who got into a long and inconclusive wrangle about civil rights.

Not so, said Salinger.

"I think it was very obvious that the president was complimenting the boys on the character of their political activity, the depth of their discussions. He was not referring to any particular political issues."

There were some hot words when reporters became difficult to convince. Asked if he expected any more developments, Salinger replied: "God, I hope not."

ST. LOUIS — Five Nepalese guides who aided in the American conquest of Mount Everest visited St. Louis' worst slums Wednesday—and liked what they saw.

Nawang Gombu, a Sherpa mountain guide who accompanied James Whitaker to the peak of the 29,828-foot mountain, said:

"I don't understand why you call that area slums. People living there have big, beautiful cars. They all wear fine clothes and have television sets."

OTTAWA—A Liberal back-bencher asked with a straight face Wednesday whether the National Gallery of Canada will be granted funds to purchase the "Ward portrait" of Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

J. J. Greene (L.—Renfrew South) drew laughter with his reference to a sketch of the former prime minister by Dr. Stephen Ward, the London society osteopath now standing trial on vice charges.

The portrait was purchased for $787 Monday by Ross Henderson, Calgary accountant and former president of the Alberta Progressive Conservative Association. Mr. Henderson said in London he hoped to present the drawing to Mr. Diefenbaker but the opposition leader was said to be cool to the idea.

Dr. Ward was commissioned by a British magazine to sketch Mr. Diefenbaker when he attended the 1961 Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London.

Ward said he agreed with Christine and Mandy Rice-Davies that soon after he met Miss Keeler the girls shared a flat together and that he used to visit them there.

Ward said he was not intimate with Miss Keeler, but that he did have intercourse with Mandy while the girls were living together.

"I want to ask you about your relationship with Lord Astor," said Burge. "How long had you known him?"

"Approximately 12 years."

"Has he helped you financially?"

"From time to time. I have returned money to him."

Didn't Know Christine Taking Money

At that point Ward gave his testimony about being an immoral man who liked to have girls around. But he denied having "the remotest idea that Miss Keeler was having intercourse for money" when she lived in a flat at his home.

"I certainly would not have allowed her to continue living there had I known."

Burge referred to "the impetuous Russian called Ivanov who apparently had intercourse with her on one occasion."

Ivanov was Yevgeny Ivanov, an attaché at the Soviet Embassy in London. Christine earlier testified she slept with Ivanov at the same time she was going around with former war minister John Profumo.

"I only have Miss Keeler's word for it," said Ward. "She told me she would like to have intercourse with him. I have always believed she never did."

Asked how he had come to meet Profumo, Ward said:

"I met him first through Lord Astor."

Miss Keeler came down to my cottage at Cliveden on a Saturday night by chance.

"We went to the swimming

"Was that financial help anything to do with either of those two girls?"

"Nothing at all, no."

Mandy testified earlier that cheque and you can pay me Lord Astor had paid the rent of a flat she shared with Christine and that the peer was one of her lovers.

Ward said he knew the two girls were broke and "I happened to mention it to Lord Astor in conversation one day."

"He said 'I will give you a cheque and you can pay back later.' And I did. It was a personal loan to me and in fact I gave it direct to the landlord."

"I did not like to attach my parties with his."

"On this occasion they were having dinner and after dinner the entire house party came, led by Mr. Profumo and Lord Astor. We were nearly all in the water."

Christine has related that this incident occurred in the summer of 1961, and that she was swimming in the nude when Profumo and Astor appeared at the pool-side.

The following day, Ward said, "we were invited to the pool by Lord Astor. Quite a considerable number of my guests went up to the pool and Mr. Profumo was there and it was during that time that some close relationship must have started."

"Whatever that relationship was, was it of any conceivable possible financial advantage to you?"

"No, it was of no possible conceivable financial advantage. It was a great embarrassment to me."

Received No Money From Profumo

"Did you ever receive any money from Mr. Profumo or Miss Keeler as a result of that relationship?" Burge asked.

"Never."

Ward said that the only time he ever saw Christine and Profumo together after that "was for a brief moment when the Russian man was there."

"I was very anxious about this," declared Ward.

Because of this anxiety, Ward said, he notified both Scotland Yard and the British secret service. He said he told the secret service "some time in early August, 1961."

510,000 in Saskatchewan Collected from Medicare

REGINA (CP)—About 510,000 Saskatchewan residents had medical expenses in the first six months of this year which were covered under the province's comprehensive compulsory medical care insurance scheme.

The Medical Care Insurance Commission, which administers the tax-supported plan put into operation July 1, 1962, said in a six-months report today that the 510,000 residents received $10,500,000 in benefits from the medical care plan.

Saskatchewan's total population is about 930,000.

Under the medical care plan, doctors may send their bills directly to MCIC; send them to a voluntary health agency such as medical services incorporated for relay to MCIC; or give them to their patients, who will look after getting reimbursement from MCIC.

All reimbursing payments made by MCIC are at the rate of 85 per cent of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons schedule of fees. If medical bills are sent to MCIC by a doctor, either directly or through a voluntary agency, the doctor accepts that 85 per cent as payment in full. If the patient seeks reimbursement himself, he may have to pay his doctor the additional 15 per cent of the fee schedule not covered by MCIC.

MCIC said in its report that in the first year of operation of the medical care plan 66 per cent of the bills it handled were submitted through voluntary health agencies, 20 per cent were submitted directly by physicians and 14 per cent were submitted by patients.

The report said 2,000,000 individual medical services were rendered to beneficiaries of the plan in the first six months of this year.

PREDICTS PEACE FORCE

The evolution of permanent UN peace-keeping machinery is still "some years away."

Mr. Martin said the cabinet is studying means of improving the co-ordination of planning of government foreign, economic and defence policy. These three are "inseparable elements in the conduct of this nation's external relations."

Mr. Martin made only one passing reference to nuclear warheads for Canadian forces. He merely repeated that Canada is negotiating a nuclear agreement with the U.S.

He said the Canada-U.S. ministerial committee on joint defence will probably meet in October. The committee hasn't met since July, 1960.

Mr. Martin also announced that he expects arrangements to be completed soon for training in Canada of armed forces cadets from Ghana. Nigerian cadets now are being trained in this country.

Protection Costly

WASHINGTON (AP)—The cost of maintaining army troops for the protection of Negro student James Meredith at the University of Mississippi ran to about $4,364,000, the Pentagon estimated Wednesday. In answer to a question, the department said this covered the period through last June 30, the latest estimate. It includes army pay, cost of deployment and housekeeping costs.

Mr. Martin also announced that he expects arrangements to be completed soon for training in Canada of armed forces cadets from Ghana. Nigerian cadets now are being trained in this country.

Reform on the Railways

THE PEARSON GOVERNMENT announces that it will soon begin to implement the report of the MacPherson royal commission. This will mean a drastic change in Canada's railway system, and no doubt strong protests from the affected regions.

In brief, the MacPherson commission found that Canadian railways, built for an earlier time, are now vastly over-extended in their tracks and their services. Lines and trains required before trucks, planes and ships on the St. Lawrence Seaway captured a great part of the total traffic are not required today.

Yet the railways are still required to operate them, often at heavy loss. The loss is paid by the public, in the form of freight rates or direct subsidies from the treasury. This year, for example, the government will pay the railways $70 millions instead of allowing them to raise their freight rates.

The commission thinks that about 8,600 miles of track may be redundant, roughly half of it belonging to each of the transcontinental railways. Actually they do not intend to scrap anything like this mileage but in any case, under the commission's formula, they could not scrap a single mile or halt any train service without the approval of the board of transport commissioners which will act as the watchdog of the public interest.

While the railways are shrinking their operations to meet the actual needs of the country, they would be paid annual subsidies as at present. Beginning at $100 millions a year, the total subsidy would drop by stages at the end of five years to zero. After that the reorganized transportation system would have to pay its own way, with huge savings to the public.

Another important principle is proposed in the commission's report. When the railways were built they controlled a virtual monopoly of transportation. Since there were no trucks, ships or planes to compete with them in most places, they were not allowed to charge all that the traffic would bear. Their rates were fixed, and are still fixed by the transport board.

But all these conditions have changed. In most places the railways must compete desperately for traffic and have lost a large part of it already to their competitors.

The commission therefore suggests that the railways shall charge what freight rates they please, except in places where there is no effective competition. For example, only the railways can economically haul grain, coal and such things as are over long distances. On all this captive freight the rates would continue to be fixed by the transport board.

These recommendations were placed before the Diefenbaker government two years ago but no action was taken because any action is bound to antagonize some regions where tracks and train services will be abandoned. It will require great courage on the part of the present government to tackle this old problem but apparently it intends to go ahead with what has become an absolutely essential overhaul of a drop-sical, uneconomic and obsolete method of moving the nation's commerce.

A Study of the Aged

SENATOR DAVID CROLL, whose clear thinking gives practical importance to his humanitarianism, has proposed a Senate investigation committee whose duties should be of unusual significance to Victoria.

The Senator urges the upper chamber to launch a study in depth of problems of the aged. He suggests that particular attention be paid to such concerns of the older citizen as work, housing, care and assistance, including that of voluntary agencies as well as the government, and that thought be given to increasing longevity, along with the problems it draws in its train and which have not yet been solved by modern society.

What lends the scheme exceptional importance for Victoria is this city's perhaps unique situation in Canada as a retirement place for elderly people from all parts of the country and elsewhere.

On other occasions statistics, based on the per capita distribution of Old Age Pensions have shown Victoria to contain more than double the national average of old people. These create a specific concern for the city. Many of them are unable to support themselves financially and the influence of this older age group is a factor which must be considered in various progressive projects proposed here.

Some of the elderly retired have come here with funds more than adequate to meet their needs—and, if a cold-blooded calculation is made, add considerably to the region's total wealth. With substantial means, they require little help from the community or from public or private agencies.

The others, those just able to scrape by with diminishing independence, provide cases with which Greater Victoria must concern itself.

Senator Croll can expect widespread support for his claims on behalf of the older folk for consideration in their later years for the time they have given to the development of Canada, or their homelands.

But it is a fact, sometimes considered disagreeable, that many have come to Victoria for the enjoyment of a bland temperate climate in their old age who have given their productive energies to some other part of Canada. As Canadians, they have every right to come here. At the same time, if they require help from the community, it seems reasonable to assume that the community might pass some of the responsibility back to the centres where they spent their constructive years.

This is not practical on a community-to-community basis across Canada. Some other means—and admittedly the universal Old Age Pension is one of them—must be devised to ease the load on such cities as Greater Victoria where the percentage of older people far outweighs that of most of, if not all of, other Canadian centres.

This city would injure its own character and demean itself if it turned its back on older folk from other regions in and outside Canada. But it has an unusual problem—one which lends itself to specific study by a committee such as that proposed by Senator Croll.

Image But No Party

THE SOCIAL CREDIT PARTY, according to the reliable Canadian Press, is trying to change its image in federal politics. It is high time, for the present image is a rather repulsive blur. The outright quarrel between the party's small prairie and large Quebec wings, Premier Manning's latest affront to the French-Canadian people, the agonies of Mr. Thompson and the gyrations of Mr. Caouette, that original inventor of perpetual motion, only confuse the voters and make the judicious Social Crediters grieve.

Among other amendments to the existing image, says the Canadian Press, Social Credit is considering a redefinition of its monetary notions to isolate them, if possible, from the original doctrine of the late Major Douglas.

This would be a logical move since the only two Social Credit governments of Canada, in British Columbia and Alberta, have long since ceased to believe in Social Credit. Mr. Bennett, indeed, regarded it as a kind of tired joke.

In any case the old, discarded doctrine is quite irrelevant to Canada's current economic problems in general and to the political problem of the so-called Social Crediters in particular. Until it can reach some agreement within itself, until it agrees on the fundamentals of Canadian life, including the relations of the nation's two major races, Social Credit is not a national party at all but only a clamorous convective of cranks.

Yet it is successful in the politics of two provinces. Instead of devising a new federal image to disguise its basic quarrels it would be wiser to concentrate its energies in provincial affairs and cease to complicate the national business of Parliament.

This, we suspect, is exactly what Mr. Bennett intends. His recent praise of the Pearson government for the Columbia agreement suggests that he will be content to remain at home minding his own store. It will need so much minding that national politics may have to get along without Mr. Bennett for some time. Probably Ottawa will endure his absence.

FROM WASHINGTON

Tax Now, Monetary Reform Later

THE administration program for dealing with the deficit in our balance of payments is quite evidently provisional. Something had to be done, because the deficit has not really been reduced in the past year. But only provisional measures were judged to be practical in the present climate of international finance.

The most serious proposal is to check the outflow of dollars for foreign investment. This is to be done by taxing the sale to Americans by foreigners of long-term foreign securities. This tax is to last for two years, ending on Aug. 16, 1965. It would make it more expensive for foreigners to raise money in the United States' capital market. Direct investment abroad by American companies in plant and equipment would not be affected.

No one can be certain that these measures and the underlying situation will bring American payments into balance in two years. However, even if they do, as the president allowed, "As we close our payments gap, we will cut down on our provision of dollars to the rest of the world." This will put serious difficulties in the way of an expansion of world trade and economic development. If deflationary pressures develop, as is possible, there will be needed big reforms in the international monetary system.

It is perhaps fair to say that while the administration has been in the past opposed to such reforms, they have been favored by the British, who share with us the burdensome honor and privilege of providing the world with a reserve currency. There are many American experts within the administration and outside it who favor major reforms. And the president himself has recently shown concern and interest.

Lippmann

But the treasury has been taking the position that the open discussion of any major change in the world monetary system would shake confidence in the soundness of the dollar. The only reforms and remedies that are safe and sound are those which can be arranged privately and carried out with a minimum of publicity by arrangements with foreign finance ministers and central bankers. The treasury is hoping to maintain confidence in the dollar by the time-honored banking rule of not allowing anything to let the dollar be questioned.

While measures may be necessary to enlarge the reserves at the base of the international monetary system, these measures must not be talked about publicly or treated as important, but must be made to appear as an unalterable, rock-like monetary system. The rule of our conduct must be, therefore, that the reform of the monetary system must come after, and not before, we have closed our own payments gap.

Proceeding according to this austere principle, the treasury has been active in devising arrangements to protect the dollar against bear raids by speculators. And in this it has had admirable co-operation from foreign central banks and finance ministers, including notably the French. But these arrangements were not designed to solve the underlying balance of payments problem. With regard to that, as Secretary Dillon told the joint economic committee on July 12, progress has been "disappointingly slow and uneven over the past 12 months."

Big, Hard Core

That is why the President has just sent his long message to Congress which includes among other things the proposal for a two-year emergency tax to cut down American foreign investments. Despite all the efforts at home and abroad to close the gap, the "hard core of our deficit" is greater by well over a billion dollars than the apparent deficit. For the accounts include a number of what Secretary Dillon calls "special transactions," which cannot be repeated very often. There has been prepayment on old debts. There have been advanced payments on military purchases which will soon be completed.

Not counting these special transactions, the deficit is still at the 1962 level, which is much too high. This leaves the administration with the task of trying to increase our dollar receipts by increasing our exports and encouraging investment by foreigners in the United States, and of reducing our dollar outflow by (1) cutting military expenditures abroad, which are $2.4 billion, (2) cutting foreign aid, which is $3.5 billion, (3) cutting down on private foreign investment, which is $2.5 billion.

Difficult Task

Though the President and the secretary of the treasury are trying to sound confident, it is a hard task which they have set themselves. A big expansion of export trade is not going to be had easily in this time of sharpening commercial competition. The military expenditures cannot prudently be reduced until and unless there is a much greater accommodation with the Soviet Union than is yet in prospect. Foreign aid, which looks like the easiest mark, turns out on examination to consist increasingly of "tied loans" which call for the export of goods, but not of dollars. That leaves foreign investment, which in a gingersy way the administration proposes to tax.

It is a plausible guess that within the two years of the emergency tax, the treasury will become increasingly interested in international monetary reform. It will be realized generally that the burden of providing a reserve currency for the world cannot be solely an American and British task, but is in fact a world obligation. Red China Sparks Chain Reaction

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

Still more see in the Moscow-Peking rupture a chance to blackmail the Russians into buying their support by concessions of one kind and another; an unusually bold and reckless performance of this kind was recently put up by the Roumanian Communist Party.

But, with all this, it must be borne in mind that henceforward every Communist minority group which, for whatever reason, feels like challenging its own official party leadership, can appeal with a great show of ideological rectitude to the Chinese example. Peking has shown the way to present revolt against Soviet domination as Leninist orthodoxy.

It will be some time, nevertheless, for the dust to settle down so that we can get a picture of the damage inflicted on the Communist movement by the great quarrel. Nobody yet knows just what is happening. Thus, for example, in Italy the situation has been fairly complicated for a long time past. The official Italian Communist leadership has been in the van of the anti-Chinese movement from the beginning. But has this been for love of Russia? Or has it been because Togliatti and Longo decided that it was their best way to offer demonstrative support to Khrushchev in exchange for some freedom to develop their ideas about "poly-centrism"?

And what about the active opposition inside the Italian party? Are the groups in Padua, Milan, Savona, Bologna and elsewhere really committed to Chinese ideas? Or are they, rather, using Peking as a cover for their personal attacks on Togliatti in the struggle for power? Clearly, there is a good deal of skull-duggery here. But intrigue of the most cynical kind may become formidable when it can harness, as some of the Italian oppositionists are harnessing, the forces of idealistic Communist youth, who feel that Togliatti and his friends are pulling their punches and not behaving as forcefully as their very strong position in the country would seem to warrant.

A quite different sort of situation is exemplified by the position of the Brazilian party. Until a few years ago, under the leadership of Prestes, this party, although underground, was the best organized and most intelligently run in the world. In 1960, at the Moscow Conference, Prestes patiently tried to point out to the Chinese the effect of their disruptive tactics on his own and other parties. Now his fears have come true. The Brazilian Party is in ruins, half of it clinging to Prestes, half of it lined up behind the violently anti-American and pro-Chinese Grubos.

In an outlawed party, where the constitutional means so appealing to Togliatti and other sophisticated Europeans must seem less attractive than the appeal to bitterness, race hatred and violent action, this is very understandable.

China has started off a chain reaction, and it is impossible even to guess whether the encouragement and justification she supplies to the most impatient elements will end in the discarding and destruction of many fraternal parties, painfully and laboriously held together in face of adversity—or whether the Chinese view is right, and that violence, at any rate in the backward areas of the world, will be found to pay quick dividends.

PARIS

'Salut, Les Copains'

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP

FRANCE has discovered the teenager. It is an upsetting discovery for a country traditionally geared to adult tastes and standards of poise and maturity. There is a striking contrast between the mature, if not matronly, appearance of female television announcers in France, and the baby faces on British TV.

In the mid-fifties, the "new wave" of under-30 writers, actors, and especially film directors swept in and put an accent on youth, but they did not appeal to any age group. They were precociously demanding a place in the adult sun.

The teenagers are different. They have their own stars (rock 'n' roll, twist, pop-singers; performers, not creators), their own crazes, their own sunshine from which "les croulants" (adults in general who are "crumbling" with age) are rigorously excluded.

The French teenagers have gradually come to realize that they stand apart as a group. France, of course, long ago had its taste of juvenile violence, leather jackets, gang fights, exuberant hair styles and the swinging of bicycle chains. But this did not develop into a movement. The solidarity of the age group was not recognized, even by the teenagers themselves.

French adults suddenly woke up to what had happened a few weeks ago, when 150,000 teenagers gathered at the Place de la Nation in Paris and went wild to the rhythms of their under-20 singing stars, performing in the open air for a commercial radio program.

Mass Hysteria

The Paris police (criticized for once for not using tough methods) shook their heads over the dangers of "collective hypnotists" and the "frenzied, syncopated, violent rhythms" which had the same intoxicating effect as alcohol and drugs. The weekly Paris newsletter complains that Maurice Chevalier, Charles Trenet and Yves Montand fans never behaved in this way, and compares the current teenage behaviour with the mass hysteria of the rallies in pre-war Nazi Germany.

The sober evening paper Le Monde has just published two well-documented articles on the phenomenon, in which a sociologist groped for an explanation in the suppression of adolescent fears of growing up. The writer, dutifully looking for a French equivalent for "teen-ager", suggests "les decennaires", for the French do not have a word for it.

This awakening is comparatively new. But French businessmen were quicker on the uptake. Since the beginning of the year, business magazines have been publishing studies on the teen-age market. The adolescent, they explain, is no longer an integral part of the family, to be seen and heard as little as possible. And he or she has a considerable amount of money to spend.

It is estimated that there are about four million boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 20, who spend something like $360 million ($1,000 million) a year. The record companies benefit most obviously from their economic emancipation. Some 30 million records of pop music are sold every year in France, most of them to adolescents. Transistor radios and record-players (teen-age status symbol) sell like hot cakes, and there has been a rush on musical instruments. One Paris shop has sold 200,000 guitars in a year.

Quick Route to Fame

The new pop rhythms are seen as the quickest route to fame and fortune, and one record firm auditions about 100 baby-faced singers every Thursday (day off from school in France).

Fashions in clothing have also been affected. The black leather jacket is out. The teen-age boy aspires to "chic" elegance—English-style suits, white collars with striped shirts and neat blazers. They have even taken to carrying umbrellas. Manufacturers said 4,500,000 men's umbrellas last year, a high proportion to teenagers.

For casual, summer wear, the current fad is a T-shirt, worn by both sexes, bearing on the front a saxophone and the words "Salut, les Copains"; this universal rally cry of the under-20s may perhaps be rendered by "Hi kids." The chief orchestrator of the teen-age movement is a photographer turned disc jockey called Daniel Filipacchi. He runs a radio program "Salut, les Copains" on the Europe No. 1 Commercial station, now so popular that it is on the air every day at 5 to 6:30 p.m.

A year ago, Filipacchi launched a monthly magazine, also called "Salut, les Copains," which now has a circulation of over one million. It is a phenomenal success by French standards, and is fat with publicity. The Ford Company advertises one of its cars as "the Demon of Speed" and claims that the "terrific exciting" English Ford Anglia at $1,365 is "well within the reach of all 'copains' who save their pocket money."

Comrades String Along

Movie magazines are jumping on the pop bandwagon, giving almost as much space to the singing idols as to film stars. The Communist Party has brought out a weekly teen-age magazine called "Nous Les Garçons et Les Filles" (We girls and boys), a title obviously inspired by one of the biggest pop successes of the past year, "Nous les Garçons et les Filles de Mon Age" (All the boys and girls of my age) launched by Francoise Hardy, aged 19.

Francoise Hardy is the intellectual of the teen-age singers. She was studying German at the Sorbonne last year, and writes her own songs, words and music. She is important as proof that the French teen-agers are not simply aping American fashions as they have in the past. They have imported the rhythms, but insist on their own national stars and their own language. One of the most popular foreign singers is Petula Clark, who takes the trouble to sing in French. Elvis Presley is a sort of aging American uncle.

The king of the idols is a Parisian of 20, who has adopted the Anglo-Saxon name of Johnny Halliday, but who gave rock French nationality. Selling close on two million records a year, and making a fortune from stage appearances throughout France, he is in the Rolle-Royce class. (Observer News Service Copyright)

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

OTTAWA — The big grin that Finance Minister Gordon has been wearing this week is not entirely because he succeeded in invoking the Spirit of Hyannis Port to get the country off the Kennedy tax hook. It's because Mr. Gordon too is off the hook.

Mr. Gordon has now given his parliamentary foes and the country more to chew on than his own political ineptness and his unfortunate backing and filling over the tax proposals in his budget. The concessions wrung from the Americans last weekend were largely Walter Gordon's doing.

If the Liberals tend to portray Gordon as the savior of his country, that's at least understandable. Liberal MPs had become very touchy on the subject of Mr. Gordon. He was the big disappointment of the new administration. Now they are trying to repair the political damage before the next election—to rebuild the Gordon image into something approximating what it was when he was their "answer man."

The political levitation of Walter Gordon is a matter of much urgency to the Liberals not only on general grounds, but because there are increasing indications that next spring will be a likely time for a new election in which Prime Minister Pearson would try to do what John Diefenbaker did in 1958.

While nobody really wants an election, the Gordon affair has caused the Grits to do some serious thinking. It's axiomatic that the longer a government is in office, the more people it disappoints and offends. If it can make new friends as fast or faster it won't be in danger—but nobody can count on this happy circumstance.

The budget was intended to keep friends. The Liberals had talked soberly in the election campaign about the blood, sweat and tears that would have to be shed in order to put the country back on the rails. But by eschewing increases in income and excise taxes, and by settling in the end for a deficit about the size of last year's, Gordon proved he has a heart as big as the size of the majority the Liberals hope to win next time.

Now if Gordon can be patched up and re-erected on his pedestal—like that statue of Queen Victoria the separatists blew up in Quebec City a short time ago—the Grits will be in better shape for an election, say, next March.

That would be a couple of months after the $10 increase in old age pensions starts. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker outsmarted the Liberals with his surprise demand that the government start paying the $10 a month immediately. If they do, Diefenbaker will get the credit and the oldsters will have forgotten by spring to thank the Grits at the polls. If the increase is held up until January, the Tories and the NDP will make the most of it in trying to turn the pensioner vote against the Grits.

"The Liberals," they will tell the oldsters, "cheated you out of $10 a month ever since July."

Ideally for the Grits, the election should come before a budget increasing taxes. It should come before April 22, since that is the date on which Pearson's pledge to pick a new flag in a year will be up. It should come before the biculturalism commission presents its report. And it should come before Premier Lesage's antagonism for the works and words of Lester Pearson passes the point of no return.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

By DICK WEST

The Shutterbugs

BIRD-IN-HAND, Pa. (UPI) — Picture-taking has come to be regarded as one of mankind's four fundamental motivations, ranking just behind eating, sleeping and sex.

In some precincts, it has forged ahead of sex.

The snapshot urge shows up most strongly in the American tourist, who can be instantly identified by the camera that dangles from a strap around his neck.

The camera is his badge, his escutcheon, his caste mark, his elk's tooth, his security symbol. He feels it is a part of him, and eventually it will be.

It is only a question of time until the process of evolution incorporates this function into the bodily mechanism and each person will be born with a camera growing out of his chest.

I cultivated an interest in the anthropological aspects of amateur photography during many years of observing tourists in Washington, D.C., where I work.

The tourists there are fond of standing in the middle of the street to snap pictures of monuments and such. In driving to the capital each morning, I usually arrived with at least one tourist draped over a front fender. The bag limit is four.

It was my interest in the subject that brought me to Bird-in-Hand. This village in the heart of the Pennsylvania Dutch country is the scene of an interesting conflict between the tourist and the Amish.

The Amish are one of the groups of "plain people" who inhabit Lancaster County. For religious reasons they still use the horse-and-buggy, wear old-fashioned clothes, shun telephones and electricity, and otherwise try to keep their homes insulated from the outside world.

All of this naturally has made them a prime tourist attraction.

Being gentle, passive people, the Amish have refrained from driving away the tourists with buckshot, as they might be justified in doing. Insofar as possible, they try to ignore the invasion.

It is, however, against their religion to permit themselves to be photographed, and a tourist with a camera is not easily ignored. Thus has been created the classic case of an irresistible force (tourist with camera) confronted with an irresistible subject (the picturesque Amish).

I would like to report that the tourist has at last met his match and is being compelled to retire from the field with shutter un-snapped and film unexposed.

Political Exiles Flock to Algeria

ALGIERS (AP) — Premier Ahmed Ben Bella's quest to become Africa's leading revolutionary is turning Algeria into a main base of nationalists seeking independence.

Political exiles and nationalists from Portugal's colonies and from South Africa are flocking to Algeria in search of support.

Despite Algeria's internal difficulties, Ben Bella has promised arms, money, training facilities and volunteers to free Africa of the remnants of colonial rule.

"I myself will fight if necessary," he emotionally told a recent rally.

The government maintains secrecy on what has actually been done to help African nationalists.

ANGOLANS TRAIN

Angolan guerrilla fighters are training in several Algerian camps. Estimates of the number vary from 300 to 1,000. They use weapons that served Algerians during their rebellion.

At the recent Addis Ababa conference of African leaders, Ben Bella pledged 10,000 volunteers to help Angola's fight against Portuguese rule.

Recently, Ben Bella personally inaugurated the headquarters of the South African "National Congress," an organization pledged to the elimination of white rule in South Africa. The headquarters, headed by Robert Rescha, is to serve as the main co-ordinating and propaganda centre for French-speaking Africa.

Ben Bella has announced he has earmarked the equivalent of $200,000 to help the struggling nationalists. Part of the fund apparently would go to South Africans.

In helping nationalists from Angola, Mozambique and South Africa, Ben Bella apparently would like to build a debt of gratitude toward Algeria which would help foster his leadership in Africa.

Casualties Reported In African Ambush

DAKAR, Senegal (AP)—Portuguese residents of the village of Suzana in Northwestern Portuguese Guinea ambushed a force of African nationalist rebels Monday near the frontier with Senegal, it was learned here Tuesday.

Reports said both sides suffered some dead and wounded in a sharp encounter which ended when the rebels withdrew to the border.

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

Give Summer Care to Peonies

When peonies fail to bloom the trouble is always attributed to the plants being set too deeply in the soil.

It has been handed down from generation to generation of gardeners that the growth buds must never be more than two inches below soil level, and most of us have followed this rule religiously.

But when the plants still persist in being flowerless despite all our care at planting time, we are hardly to blame if we suspect some other condition as being the cause of the trouble.

I know for a fact that when hundreds of peonies are being planted, or moved, in a nursery there is no time to measure the soil coverage of each one. True, they are always planted "shallow," but their exact depth is never checked, yet every one will flower as it should.

It seems possible that flowering is more dependent on summer care than on depth of planting. Undoubtedly, plants that make so much growth in one season, and produce so many large blossoms, will require plenty of nourishment to keep going year after year.

When we think of the feeding and watering program considered necessary to produce the large chrysanthemum blossoms seen in the fall shows, most of us have to admit our peonies are on a starvation diet.

Without running any scientific tests, it has appeared to me that a complete fertilizer after flowering, followed by regular watering until the end of August, has produced plants which bloom consistently.

Through the "garden grapevine" I have heard that heavy applications of wood ashes in the fall have made somnolent plants wake up. Wood ashes contain potash and many other salts and therefore would bear out my notions.

With any of these early blooming perennials it seems that if you treat them well after flowering, they will give you a treat the next season.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by children and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Tom Schaffer, 9, Boise, Ida., for his question: Do horseshair snakes really turn into snakes?

Maybe you live in the country where there are horses and other friendly farm animals. Then chances are you have heard the strange story of the horseshair snake. Perhaps you have tested the story to see if it is true. Many young people have put a hair from a horse's tail into a jar of water, hoping it will turn into a snake. But it never does.

This long, stringy animal lives in creeks and ponds where we hardly notice him in the muddy water. But sometimes he gets into the trough of water where the horses drink. Then we do notice him. We call him the hair snake or the horseshair snake. Both names suit him, because the skinny fellow looks for all the world like a hair—perhaps two feet long—a coarse hair that might have come from the tail

Lays Eggs In Water

The hair snake came from his parents, who were also hair snakes. His parents came from his grandparents, who were just like all the hair snakes who have ever lived. And the true-life story of the hair snake is more amazing than the fanciful story.

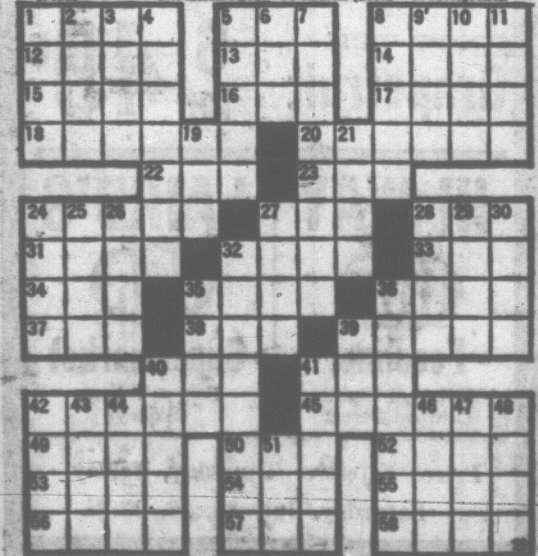

Most of the stringy fellow's life is spent inside the tummy of a cricket or a water beetle or a grasshopper. When he is fully grown he leaves the insect and drops into the water. This is why we never see young hair snakes in the horse trough. Mrs. Hair Snake lays strings of eggs in the water, and they hatch into millions of grubs. A few will be swallowed by insects. They will stay inside the insects until they are ready to live in the water.

All true snakes have bony skeletons with dozens of ribs. The hair snake is not a true snake, for he does not have one bone in his body. Some people call him a hairworm, but he is not related to the pink earthworm. Mr. Pinky had banded rings called segments around his body, and the hairworm has no segments. He is a very simple animal called a roundworm or a threadworm. In North America, we can find 15 different hairworms. Some are black, some are rusty-red, and the big ones may be two feet long.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

'Separatism Is All Wet'

By JACK HUTTON

STONEHAM, Que.—Fifteen-year-old Linda Villeneuve smiled behind the motel counter and shook her head vigorously.

"Believe me," she said, "separatism is all wet. I can't believe that Quebec would ever leave the rest of Canada."

"All my friends are French-Canadian, and they feel the same way. As far as we're concerned, the adults who talk about leaving Canada are crackpots."

Linda Villeneuve, a friendly, brown-eyed girl who will enter Grade 10 next fall in Quebec, 30 miles south of Stoneham, is a teen-ager in an interesting position: an English girl in a province that is wondering about its place in Confederation.

English at Home

Linda, working this summer as a waitress-maid and girl-of-all-chores at a motel in Stoneham, considers herself English although her father is French-Canadian.

"We speak English at home," she says.

How do Quebec teen-agers feel about the intense discussions they hear swirling about them? Do they feel that they belong to the same country as the English-speaking teen-agers who visit them in the summer?

I talked with a number of young people about this question during a week's tenting expedition in "La Belle Province," but found them most reluctant to bare their own feelings—possibly out of politeness to a guest.

She's Different

Linda, whose home is one mile south of her motel job, was different. Equally at home in French or English, she could do what few of her neighbors could—understand both points-of-view.

How long, I asked, had she been speaking French? "I guess I started when I was about seven years old. When you're playing with other kids, you pick up words from them," said Linda.

Do Linda's French-speaking friends feel strange with young English-speaking visitors from other parts of Canada or the United States? Do they seem visitors from another country?

Linda seemed puzzled by this question. "No, I don't think so," she said. "The Americans, of course, usually know only a couple of words in French. But other Canadians have usually studied the language and try to use it."

Grade 3 Start

"I know some friends in Ontario who are starting the French language in Grade 3," she added. "When does it usually start? I started in Grade 3. I'd never have learned it after Grade 8, I'm sure."

The teaching of French is stressed differently in different provinces, I explained, but more and more young Canadians now start learning the language before high school.

Linda shook her head. "I don't see how they ever learn it if all they get is the grammar," she said. "It was hard enough for me. I'd never have learned it if I wasn't speaking it with friends."

What are Linda's plans for the future? "I'm going to be a nurse," she answered without hesitation. "That means finishing Grade 11 and then probably entering a Quebec City hospital for training."

At vacation time, when they could be loafing.

"Is Mary tough to work with?" I put the question to Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, the old youngsters, the adult kids, who wrote the songs and the book for Mary, all about Laurette Taylor back in 1904.

"Yes, all stars are tough," Dietz nodded over a bourbon at Lindy's.

"I don't think so," Schwartz, the straight man, said.

"Mary is—but it's hard for her to be tough with us—we give her such brilliant material," Dietz smiled.

"She'll win every award," Schwartz observed. "Our publisher thinks we have several hit songs."

"What would he know about it?" Dietz asked.

Dietz and Schwartz have been through 11 shows together, have written 500 to 600 songs together—over 35 years. They've known everybody and dietz, the bad boy still, at 66, is glib about everybody.

Trade With Red Nations Hinged on Tariff Policy

By ALAN DONNELLY
OTTAWA (CP)—The government's hopes of developing stable export markets behind the Iron Curtain may move closer to fruition in September with a top-level visit to Eastern Europe by the trade department's senior officer.

James Roberts, deputy trade minister, will visit Poland, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia, and also neutral Austria during a 2½-week tour.

One of the purposes of the tour will be to create closer relations with the men who guide trade policy in those countries.

But there is a broader goal, stated in the Commons recently by Trade Minister Sharp, to build up stable markets in Communist countries not only for wheat—Canada's No. 1 export behind the Iron Curtain—but also for other Canadian products.

Mr. Sharp's statement underlined one basic problem in Canada's trade with Communist countries.

Those countries want to sell more to Canada to offset a trade balance which is strongly in Canada's favor. But since prices of goods in Communist countries are set by state trading corporations—often with little regard to production costs or competitive factors—their imports to Canada are subject to arbitrary valuation by customs officers. Extra Canadian tariffs are frequently applied.

SHOULD RECIPROCATATE

Mr. Sharp said that in return for increased Canadian exports to these countries, "we must expect to see their goods find a place in the Canadian market under conditions which will not pose the threat of disruption to efficient Canadian production."

This issue of Canadian tariff treatment of Communist shipments likely will bulk large in the talks Mr. Roberts will have in Poland, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

Last year Canada sold nearly $42,000,000 worth of products to the three—two-thirds of it made up of a $28,435,000 wheat sale to Poland. In return, the three countries sold only $15,624,000 worth of goods to Canada.

The trade department would like to see more stability in wheat sales to Communist countries—a market which fluctuates widely. Last year total exports to Russia and Communist countries in Eastern Europe dropped to $49,720,000 from $121,579,000 in 1961, due largely to declines in wheat shipments.

Recently the Canadian wheat board announced a 3,700,000-bushel wheat sale to Poland, which took 13,875,000 bushels of Canadian wheat last year. The board also is reported negotiating a possible sale to Czechoslovakia, where Canada sold no wheat in 1962.

CANADA MISERLY?

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday he is checking on the accuracy of statistics published by a 12-nation committee in Paris indicating that Canada is at the bottom of its list of Western countries making financial assistance available to underdeveloped countries. He was asked in the Commons by Stanley Knowles (NDP-Winnipeg North Centre) what steps the government would take to improve its position.

ANTI-COMBINES BRANCH

Sun Newspaper Sale Studied by Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Chevrier told Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) Wednesday that the anti-combines section of his department is looking into the acquisition of a controlling interest in the Sun Publishing Company Limited of Vancouver by F.P. Publications Limited.

Inquest Told Victim Drove Wrong Side

A 19-year-old driver was on the wrong side of the road when the accident that took his life occurred, a coroner's jury was told Wednesday.

They ruled that Gordon Troy, 963 Sluggert, died accidentally.

He died 25 hours after his small sedan was in a head-on collision with another car on the Patricia Bay Highway near Keatings Cross Road very early last Thursday morning.

Highway at that point has two lanes for southbound traffic and one for northbound.

Troy was going north when his car hit the other car, which was travelling south in the passing lane.

The jury added a rider to the verdict calling for a double solid line all the way down Keating Hill between the southbound passing lane and the single northbound lane.

Mr. Fisher asked Tuesday in the Commons about the status of a 1960 understanding with the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission. It concerned Pacific Press Limited, set up in 1957 by the Sun Publishing Company Limited for joint production facilities but separate control of the Vancouver Sun and the Vancouver Province.

Mr. Chevrier said there was no restraining order in the Vancouver newspaper case, but an understanding was given in 1960 to the director under the Combines Act that they would advise the government if there was any material changes made in the 1957 agreement.

"No such advice has been received by the director," Mr. Chevrier said.

"The director is, of course, aware of the acquisition of a controlling interest in Sun Publishing Company Limited by F.P. Publications Limited, as reported in the press, and is taking the necessary steps to determine whether it gives cause for an inquiry under the Combines Investigation Act."

EGYPT PULLOUT TEMPORARY?

DAMASCUS, Syria (Reuters)—Premier Salah Eddin Bitar said Wednesday Egypt's withdrawal from a planned federation with Syria and Iraq "creates a new situation in the Arab world."

He said an Arab-world convention of the Ba'ath (socialist) party, major target of Egyptian President Nasser, would be held to discuss the situation.

Bitar gave no date for the convention but said it would work out a policy for future Arab unity.

He told a press conference he hopes Egyptian withdrawal from the planned three-nation federation is temporary but added "as long as there are unionists, there is no reason to fear for unity in the Arab world."

But there is a broader goal, stated in the Commons recently by Trade Minister Sharp, to build up stable markets in Communist countries not only for wheat—Canada's No. 1 export behind the Iron Curtain—but also for other Canadian products.

Strangling of Four Boys Described by Ex-Convict

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—A coroner's jury required only one and a half minutes Wednesday night to find Leopold Dion, 43, criminally responsible for the murders by strangulation of four Quebec City boys who disappeared last April and May.

The paroled former convict, sentenced to life imprisonment in 1943 for the rape of a Pont Rouge, Que., school teacher, is to be arraigned today and charged with capital murder of the four boys.

He was arrested May 27 and has been held by provincial police since.

The four boys, who have been found and identified, are: Guy Luckenluch, 13, of Kenogami, Que., who disappeared April 20; Alain Carrier, 10, and Michel Morel, 8, both of Quebec City, who disappeared from the Plains of Abraham May 5; and Pierre Marquis, 13, who vanished from the Foulon public beach in Quebec City May 26.

The four had been missing nearly a month when the discovery of the body of the Luckenluch youth intensified the police search for the others. Luckenluch was found in a shallow, sandy grave by a bird-watcher who saw a finger sticking through the sand.

WIDE SEARCH
Police launched a county-wide search for the other three, and found the bodies after Dion had led them to the graves. The boys had all been sexually attacked.

A cigarette package on which a car licence was written was used as evidence Wednesday night to link Dion with the slayings. David Derome, a 39-year-old farm laborer said he had seen the car, a 1954 Vanguard, parked near his father's abandoned farm May 5. He said the windows of the vehicle were down and a trench coat was in the back seat.

"I don't know why, but just in case, I took the number of the car which was 887296, a black 1954 Vanguard," he said. Dion's brother, Roland, 42, who was also convicted of the 1943 school teacher rape, identified the car as one he had loaned to his older brother.

Dion was allegedly in the abandoned house with the Carrier and Morel boys at the time.

Dion then told the five-man jury in a three-hour confession of his part in the tragedy. He told the boys he worked for a medical society which was making a study of young Canadian boys. He said he used this camera routine to induce boys to go with him in each instance.

Dion told the jury he had to kill the boys so they would not identify him and return him to penitentiary. He said he gave all a chance to say a last prayer before strangling them so "they would be sure to go to heaven."

Following his testimony, the jury took 90 seconds to find him criminally responsible.

In 1956, after being released briefly on parole, Dion was sent back to prison for committing a homosexual act with a young boy. He was paroled again last Sept. 28.

Shortly before Dion told his story, his case was discussed briefly in the Commons at Ottawa where Donald MacDonald, parliamentary secretary of justice, declined to disclose details of how he was released.

Dr. Guy Marcoux (Ind. SC—Quebec Montmorency) wanted to know who recommended the parole, and Mr. MacDonald said the parole board cannot discuss its reasons for liberating convicts.

Mr. MacDonald said the parole board has full powers to grant conditional releases and has exclusive jurisdiction.

MOUNTING CURB and crashing her car into store front in Ottawa Wednesday, Mrs. John Diefenbaker escaped injury. A spokesman said the wife of the Conservative opposition leader apparently pushed the gas pedal instead of the brake.

Ghana Urges Suspension Of Portugal

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—A Ghanaian told the United Nations security council Wednesday it should suspend Portugal from UN membership unless Portugal acts by mid-September to end alleged repression in Angola.

Portugal denied there was such repression in its African colony and invited four African cabinet ministers present to go to Angola and Mozambique, see things for themselves and talk with the Portuguese about African problems.

Bypass Union Committee Fishing Body Suggests

The federal government should order a fishermen's union membership vote on the latest company offer, a B.C. Fisheries Association bargainer says.

He suggested the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union bargaining committee was blocking settlement of the current strike.

The association bargains on behalf of most fish buyers and processors on the coast and came to stalemate with the union after six weeks of negotiation came through with a "final offer" that would provide for higher prices for sockeye and chums, the same price for coho and a 1½-cent cut for pinks.

The association also offered 4 per cent wage hikes for shore workers and tendermen who are members of the fishermen's union.

The union bargainers replied with a counter-offer that was rejected by the association and since then there have been no talks. Each side is waiting for the other to offer resumption of negotiations.

The association accuses the union of prolonging the strike in the face of approaching peak net season by refusing to put the final offer to a membership ballot.

"The government, or someone, should make this union take a membership vote on our offer," said O. J. Macdonald, chairman of the association bargaining committee.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

"His wits are dull,
But his smile is bright,
And his eyes are warm,
When you hug him tight . . ."

There is a street in our town, two blocks long, shown on the map as Elford. It could be named the "Street of Dreams" or the "Street of Hope."

At 1450 Elford sits a huge grey stone and wood house, long ago a family mansion. Every day 27 humans from three to 30 pass through its doors. More would come. More want to. But there is no room at the centre for the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded.

"We have 17 people over 18 and a waiting list of nine," says Mrs. Winifred Clark, executive director. "In pre-school class we have 10 from three to six and a waiting list of 10."

"His hands are slow
And his feet can stray,
But he'll follow one
Who will lead the way . . ."

"Do we get them all? Heavens, no," said Mrs. Clark. "There are about 200 moderately retarded in Greater Victoria. Many we never hear of because of the dark ages philosophy that retardates must be punished or protected."

"Here at Elford House we say, 'let's see the child,' and 'let's see what the child can do.'"

"We're not miracle workers. We know that some retardates will be almost totally dependent during their lifetime. But there are others who can obtain part-time work in the community after several months."

"They can learn to cook and bake; to keep house and care for gardens; to weave and sew and knit. Here they live as equals and learn as equals . . ."

"Sometimes he's ugly,
And hard to please,
But he is a child
And of such are these' . . ."

A committee of 12, split between parents of retarded children and professional people administer the school on a budget of $12,000 per year. A full-time supervisor, seven part-time teachers and volunteer workers carry the burden most of us would shy from. There is an air of happiness, a sense of purpose at Elford House.

"We laugh with them," says Mrs. Clark. "Not at them." Some 3,000 babies were born in Greater Victoria last year. The incidence of retarded is three in every 100.

"People forget or just don't know that it can happen to any parents," Mrs. Clark says. "In Great Britain a survey of retardates went back through four generations. Half were hereditary; the rest were not . . ."

"His Loving Father
Cares for him, too,
But His love comes down,
Through me and through you . . ."

"What can we do for them? We can teach the little ones socialization and co-ordination—prepare them for more formal schooling," Mrs. Clark says.

"The older ones are harder. At 18 and 20 with IQ's of 30 and 50 they have the mentality of eight and nine-year-olds. Some will be able to shed their fears and return to their homes, able to take care of themselves at least. Elford House may give others 10 or 15 more years out of an institution."

She thought a minute. "A place like this," she said, "does as much for the family as it does for the retardate."

"A girl—call her Betty—came to us not long ago after living a sheltered life for 18 years. Her mother died and her father and brother decided to try us before sending her to an institution."

"Betty couldn't dress or wash herself. She was terrified of stairs. Her mental age is three. Now she peels potatoes, washes dishes, winds wool. Small things to you and me; monumental accomplishments for her. Her family's despair has turned to hope, to delight."

"She climbed the stairs the other day. We were so happy here we almost declared a holiday . . ."

"So give to the child
As you would receive
With his faith and your hope
See what Love can achieve! . . ."

The Times and Anglers' Associations are holding a two-day salmon derby Saturday and Sunday. Proceeds will be split between Queen Alexandra Solarium, Cerebral Palsy Association, and Elford House.

None is more—or less—needy than the other. But to this point Elford House has been sustained only by volunteer contributions, by Foresters' bingo games, by United Commercial Travellers' labor.

Each year the Retarded Association petitions the government for aid. The reply is always negative. There are people who agree Elford House isn't relieving the government since the government's facilities are already taxed. These same people argue with conviction that the government isn't really tackling the problem.

Mrs. Clark has spent 30 years with retardates. "I should have retired and stayed home enjoying the sea view," she said. "I tried it once but I came back. I felt I couldn't keep anything back from them."

Of Retarded Associations she says: "We are newcomers in the field. Heart, cancer, blind, all came first. All deserve the help they receive. But the time will come when the retarded receive equal recognition, equal assistance."

A retarded child may say it another way. Like this rhyme on the walls of the kindergarten room at Elford House . . .

"Please let me grow as I be,
So I will grow to be like me;
Not as mother says I must be,
Not as daddy thinks I should be,
Not as teacher feels I could be,
But let me be free,
To grow like me . . ."

City Colt Stars Romp in Opener

CHEMANUS—Second and third games of the Vancouver Island Colt Baseball League finals looked like more formalities Wednesday after Victoria All-Stars blanked Mid-Island All-Stars 9-0 in the first game of the series.

Steady one-hit pitching and flawless defensive play proved to be the order of the day for the Victorians.

Pitchers Gordie Strongman, Pete Jolly, and Bruce Mackenzie struck out a total of 10 batters, and walked only two as they shared mound duties.

The only hit by the losers was a double off Strongman in the third inning.

Shortstop Dave Evans was top hitter for the winners, driving in three runs on a double and a single.

Victorians opened the scoring with three runs in the first inning and had the game all to themselves as they added two more in each of the third, fourth and fifth frames.

Second game is set to go at 2 p.m. Saturday, and a third at 5 p.m. the same day if the Victorians lose.

Ashbee Spoils Schweitzer's Bid For a Shutout

Vancouver 15, Shamrocks 1

By Doug Feden

Don Ashbee has collected a bushel or two of goals during his lacrosse career. Scoring is old hat for Victoria's veteran playing-coach and another tally seldom rates even a change of expression.

But when Don fired his 26th goal of the current Inter-City Lacrosse League season Wednesday night at Memorial Arena he undoubtedly felt considerable, although not satisfaction. The effort even produced a fleeting Ashbee smile.

It was in the fifth minute of the final quarter and Don was shuffling far out from the Vancouver goal. He packed the ball a bit closer, shifted to the left, then stepped to the right as Vancouver bruisers Bill Barbour and Bill Chisholm moved out to check.

SCREEN HELPS

When Barbour and Chisholm were almost together, Ashbee used them as a screen and fired a shot. Goalsie Merv Schweitzer caught sight of the ball too late and it swished into the lower right corner of the Vancouver net.

It was a canny effort, but there was only one trouble.

That was the only goal the Rocks collected all night.

Don's only satisfaction came from spoiling Schweitzer's hopes and sparing the Irish the humiliation of a shutout—a rare thing in senior lacrosse.

During the rest of the game there was humiliation a plenty for the Shamrocks.

Outmuscled, outgunned and continually thwarted by a brilliant Schweitzer, they were bombed 15-1, suffering the sorriest thrashing of the box lacrosse season.

Making the lopsided tally even more surprising was the fact that in Vancouver's two previous appearances at Memorial Arena, the Irish had chalked up a 9-3 victory and battled to a spectacular 15-15 deadlock with the club that now leads second-place New Westminster by seven points.

But the Irish had no answer for Vancouver Wednesday. Finely conditioned, moving the ball briskly and checking with authority, the leaders left no doubt that they intend to finish in first place as they attacked from the start and never eased up.

For the Rocks, who depended mainly on ball-hogging, individual efforts and often gave the ball away with weak, off-target shots, there was only one star.

That was goalie Barry Forbes, a valiant figure during the first three periods. Forbes, who stopped several breakaways, held Vancouver to two goals in the first quarter, four in the second and one in the third. But Barry finally had to yield to pressure and he fished eight balls out of his net in the closing period.

SCHWEITZER HOPING

Forbes ended up with 26 saves, the same number chalked up by Schweitzer and Skip Jolly, who replaced Merv 28 seconds after Ashbee's goal and made four stops.

The big man, of course, was Schweitzer, whose athletic ambition is to add a senior shutout to the one he collected in junior box lacrosse.

"That's the closest I've come since then," said crew-cut Merv, 24, 165 pounds and in his second full season with Vancouver.

"Ashbee had a good screen for his shot. I never did get a good look at it."

"You've got to be lucky to come that close to a shutout and you've got to have good checking in front of you. But I'm still hoping."

From the sidelines Wednesday, it appeared as if that good checking, plus Merv Schweitzer, could be enough to carry Vancouver to a second straight Canadian crown come September.

MARATHON TENNIS

Andy's Right About Balance

"We might not have the biggest names in the business," Andy Pitkethley was heard to say, "but from the standpoint of balance, you couldn't ask for a better entry."

The president of the Racquet Club of Victoria made his remark while watching a spirited doubles battle on the No. 2 court during Wednesday's afternoon activity in the B.C. Open tennis tournament.

He must have been tempted to repeat his remarks about an hour later watching the same court, same battle and, verily, same set.

One of the longest single games in the club's history gave Andy some solid backing. Nobody, it seems, will argue the fact that there is no balance. Least of all, Jim Jackson, Harry Doyle, Bob Stock and Red Witt.

Jackson and Doyle, both of Portland, won the first game

Top-seeded junior veterans Butch Krikorian, the San Jose teacher, and Joe Woolfson polished off Bill Herrick and C. B. Allou 6-3, 6-1 on court one—well in advance of the completion of the second-court marathon.

Other results: Men's singles, open—Jack Reer (Portland) defeated Jack Wallen (San Diego) 6-3, 6-2. Ladies' singles—Margo Hodges (Ospelt, Utah) defeated Joan Parry (Victoria), 6-0, 6-1. Ann Beck (Oak Bay, Calif.) defeated Bernice Parrish (Victoria), 6-3, 6-0. Dora Popple (Portland) defeated Joan Hackett (Salt Lake City) 6-1, 6-4. Ladies' doubles—Hodges and Hackett defeated Doherty and Knight, 9-7, 6-4. Mixed doubles—Diana Gai and Rod Kop defeated Warren and Robin Hodgson (Mill Valley, Calif.) 6-3, 6-2.

WHEN YOU ARE SWING WITH AN OPENING IN THE SAND, THE MAIN OBJECTIVE IS TO ADJUST THE BODY SO THE SHOT WILL PLAY THE SAME AS IT WOULD FROM A SAND TRAP.

I TRY TO MAKE MY BODY MOVE AS PARALLEL AS POSSIBLE TO THE LINE IN THE SAND.

MY BODY IS KEPT WELL BEHIND THE BALL THROUGHOUT THE SWING. THE CLUB IS TAKEN AWAY SLOW AND SORT OF FOLLOWS THE CONTOUR OF THE SWING.

LIKEWISE, THROUGH THE HITTING AREA AND FOLLOW-THROUGH, THE SWING FOLLOWS THE UPGRADE.

One of a Dozen, Cubs' Kennedy Seems Good Bet

Associated Press

Barring a complete disintegration of his forces, Bob Kennedy of the incredulous Chicago Cubs appeared a certainty today to be voted 1963 National League Manager of the Year.

But hold on there. How can one bestow a managerial accolade upon a coach, even if he has been designated as head coach?

Cub owner Philip K. Wrigley insists there is no such animal on his club. Coaches, yes, but managers, no.

Kennedy, in his first year with Cubs, is last on the list of 12 Chicago coaches appearing in the National League green book. But he is the acknowledged boss on the field. So much so that he's been there all year. In each of the last two years Cubs rotated their "head coaches," using at least three a season.

Regardless of his title, Kennedy has done a magnificent job. He has had Cubs, a pre-season pick to battle New York Mets and Houston Colts for eighth place, in pennant contention virtually from opening day.

Madam D Insists 'Relko Not Doped'

LONDON (AP) — "Relko was not doped," said Mrs. Francois Dupre Wednesday after an inquiry into the running of the Epsom Derby, a race won by Relko.

Mrs. Dupre, wife of the horse's French owner; trainer Francois Mathet and jockey Yves St. Martin were among persons who attended a 90-minute inquiry.

The meeting followed allegations that Relko had been doped to win the Derby May 29. Later

Relko, an odds-on favorite to win the Irish Derby, was pulled out of the Irish race seconds before the start because he went lame.

The inquiry into Relko's running in the English Derby was held by the stewards of Epsom.

Mrs. Dupre said she would be returning to England Aug. 7 to attend a hearing by the stewards of the Jockey Club, ruling body of flat racing in Britain.

The results of Wednesday's hearing were referred to the Jockey Club.

The inquiry was part of a bigger campaign to rid British tracks of horse-race doping. The Jockey Club recently said that seven horses were doped in the months of April and May.

A lawyer accompanying Mrs. Dupre said they were convinced nothing was wrong.

Mrs. Dupre commented: "Relko was not doped. I do not think that they (the Epsom stewards) needed convincing."

Builders Go Wild Against Athletics

Every so often Builders look like they just don't belong in last place in the Senior Amateur Baseball League race.

Take Wednesday night, for instance. Builders belted out 10 hits, came up with solid pitching and errorless fielding to clobber second-place Athletics 9-1.

Don Moseley did the job on the mound, giving up only two hits, both singles by John Todd.

Neil Worboys was Builders' key man at the plate. He drove in two runs with a triple and two more when the Athletics made a fielding error in the sixth eighth inning.

The win left Builders one game behind third-place Independents. The cellar-dwellers take on front-running Transports Saturday in a doubleheader at Royal Athletic Park.

Seattle Junior Takes B.C. Title

VANCOUVER — Remember Danny Scott. Only 16, the Washington State junior golf champion is being touted as one of the up-and-coming stars of the sport in the Pacific Northwest.

The Seattle swinger showed his stuff to a talent-sprinkled B.C. field this week, claiming the provincial junior title with a 74-69-70 — 213 — three under par — display.

Vancouver's Wayne Vollmer finished with a closing par 72 to claim runner-up laurels. His scores: 72-73-72-217.

Wednesday's final round was one Gary Smith of Victoria and Vancouver's Doug Robb prefer to forget. Tied with Scott for the lead after 36 holes, both Smith and Robb finished with 76's and 219 totals. Seattle's Tom Tindall also was bracketed in the 219 group.

The showing of Vollmer.

Crash Program Beats Fear

The majority of the 115 youngsters now enrolled in Victoria's "crash" swim program will not graduate as accomplished swimmers.

This is because the crash program means six lessons in two weeks. Most of the children will reach a certain stage in development where they need more practice than time will allow.

But perhaps the most important thing taught in the instruction periods is that water is fun. The youngsters gradually overcome fear of putting their faces in the water.

"Familiarization is taught in the first lesson," said Art Burgess, "Y" physical director in charge of the program, "and continued throughout the remaining five."

Most of the instruction is done by members of the Flying "Y" swim team. Four instructors are assigned to a class of 30.

Children taking part range in age from six to 14 years.

"We stress a minimum of six years or at least one year in school so the child will be able to conform to a group activity," Mr. Burgess explained.

"The oldest, a 14-year-old boy visiting a grandmother from California, learned to swim while on vacation.

"He was able to swim across the deep end of the pool by his fifth lesson."

Mr. Burgess claims using instructors from the "Y" swim team enhances a youngster's chances of learning.

"Most of them have younger brothers and sisters and have acquired skills in working with kids. Children find it easier learning from someone nearer their own age."

Two Die In Crash

WHITE ROCK, B.C. (CP) — Fred Edmonds, 48, of Coquitlam, and his daughter Beril, 19, died in a two-car collision on the King George Highway Tuesday which sent five others to hospital. Edmonds' wife, Barbara May, 45, was in critical condition in hospital at New Westminster. The driver of the second car, Jack Servis, 23, of Vancouver, Wash., was also in critical condition.

Wood, 11, and Diane Morton, 10. Instructor is Julie Dawe of "Y" swim club.

Briefly, here's how the program works:

The first lesson is devoted to making the child feel at home in the water through bobbing, bubble-blowing and kicking drills. These are repeated each lesson.

Students are taught to float in the second lesson. Two gimmicks used to give a child the confidence water will support him. He is asked to pick something up off the bottom of the pool and to kneel and put his face in the water.

In the third lesson the kick and float is combined. Fourth 30-minute lesson is used to combine the legs with the arms.

"Ninety-nine per cent of all untrained swimmers swim with their arms. Our pupils are trained to make their first response to kick. It is the kick which propels a swimmer," Mr. Burgess said.

Co-ordination of the swimmer's breathing is done in the fifth lesson and the session is used to polish skills.

PIGGY-BACK SATELLITE GETS RADIATION DATA

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Air Force disclosed Wednesday that it has a hitherto secret satellite in orbit to collect data on radiation in space. It was launched from another satellite more than three weeks ago.

The parent satellite, sent up from Vandenberg air force base near Santa Barbara, Calif., into polar orbit June 27, appeared similar to the Discoverer series about which the military has said little.

The piggy-back satellite, with an instrument payload of about 50 pounds, was released from the carrier satellite July 1 by electronic signal.

Local Control For New Centre

By FRANK RUTTER

A new mental health centre planned by the provincial government for Victoria may be turned over to the community as one of the first steps in a revolutionary breakaway from traditional control.

Health Minister Eric Martin disclosed Tuesday that extensive changes in mental health legislation are under study.

One of the changes will probably be to enable communities to participate in the construction and administration of mental health centres and hospitals.

This was one of the major recommendations of a special report compiled by Dr. J. S. Tyhurst, professor of psychiatry at the University of B.C. and submitted to the government in June.

At present all mental hospitals are operated by the provincial government.

EQUAL STATUS

The Tyhurst plan, which Mr. Martin admitted he favors, would give them the same status as general public hospitals.

While Mr. Martin did not refer specifically to the Victoria project—which has been promised more than two years now—it would provide the first opportunity for him to strike a major blow toward decentralization.

Changing the whole provincial service over would be a very gradual and lengthy process, though.

Mr. Martin said the new legislation, which might arrive next year, was being discussed with all interested parties in the mental health field.

ANTIQUATED

He termed present laws antiquated.

"I anticipate extensive and constructive amendments," Mr. Martin said.

The legislation will probably be a single act to replace four which now cover the field.

The concept of community treatment is the basis of B.C.'s overall policy now, and already some progress has been made in the Okanagan and Kootenays in providing consulting services, although still under provincial control.

Mr. Martin said he foresees no public reluctance to take up the responsibility for mental health care.

"The public has become so understanding that I feel it is prepared to go a long way in developing the new policy," he said.

The main aim is to do away with long-term custodial care in the massive provincial institutions.

"The patients become institutionalized," said Mr. Martin, "If you let them out on the road they wouldn't know which way to go."

Mr. Martin is expecting recommendations in line with the policy of decentralization in the Hall Royal Commission report on Canadian health services.

"This will bring about a better day for the mentally ill," he said.

The main recommendations he is hoping for is federal aid which he says is "essential" to meet present-day needs.

This may be one of the reasons for the delay in starting Victoria's new mental health centre.

The report is due in December, Mr. Martin said.

TOP CONTENDER for post of Canadian high commissioner to London, as successor to George Drew, is French-Canadian career diplomat Jules Léger, informed sources in Ottawa said today. The 50-year-old brother of Cardinal Léger of Montreal is currently serving as ambassador to Italy.

Costs To Be Too High Private Firm Claims

OTTAWA (UPI)—A firm of insurance consultants today attacked the federal government's proposed contributory portable pension scheme, claiming it will ultimately boost pension costs by 4.5 per cent for both employees and employers.

Alexander and Alexander Services Ltd., consultants claiming to represent "many other actuaries, consultants and organizations knowledgeable in the employee benefit field" made its study public in Ottawa today.

The report charged that Health Minister LaMarsh held some facts about costs and taxes in her outline of the proposed plan in the Commons last week.

Starting from the proposed cost of two per cent of earnings—half paid by employees, half by employers—costs would "rise rapidly" to a level of "approximately nine per cent of payroll of all persons employed in Canada," the report said.

Split between employers and employees and added to the present three per cent of the existing old age pension, the total would amount to a level eventually of 7.5 per cent cost of a large part of payrolls and earnings, it added.

The consultants also claim the new plan, added to private plans which they say pay 40 to 50 per cent of earnings will produce "in many cases . . . a retirement income well in excess of the total earnings while actively employed."

The plan the report said, would also conflict with and duplicate not only private plans but provincial plans.

They also say it is unfair for employees now to pay for the $10 increase in the old-age pension which come into effect early next year, if the plan is proved.

Winches Replace Muscle

VANCOUVER (CP)—To push a button or use some muscle? That was the problem discussed at two consecutive school board meetings here as trustees tried to decide whether electric winches should be purchased to raise and lower basketball backboards or whether muscles should be used instead.

One official said it took 20 minutes for a maintenance man to raise and lower the backboards. They estimated this took 100 hours a year at $2 an hour.

Not so said Trustee Fred Rowell. "I tested the hand winches and found it only took six minutes, not 20."

"The next thing you know we'll have push-button panels in the instructors' offices," he said.

The board approved the purchase of two winches for Killarney and three for the New King George High School.

Other school principals—not to be outdone—have also applied for electric winches in their schools.

Pension Plan Not U.S. Duplicate

By DON HANBRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—So complex is the field of old-age pensions that it took professor Robert M. Clark the equivalent of three full-length novels to describe it in his report of 1960, a report now almost forgotten.

Yet this is the field into which the federal-provincial conference will venture on Friday and Saturday, probably with emphasis on the constitutional stickiness of the federal proposal for a Canada pension plan.

The provincial premiers or their delegates also will have to find time for a separate discussion with Prime Minister Pearson and his colleagues on the municipal loans issue. Both subjects likely will be revived in the premiers' Halifax meeting next week.

Prof. Clark, a University of British Columbia economist who was given his one-man assignment by former prime minister Diefenbaker, turned in a massive document that helps to set the stage for the federal plan sketched in the Commons last week by Welfare Minister LaMarsh.

OFFERED COMMENTS

Specifically, he was asked to compare the Canadian and U.S. pension systems. But he was asked in terms that precluded making his own recommendations for Canada. Instead, he reviewed the history of pension systems in both countries and offered comments.

Some of those comments:

1. A huge pile of money would be needed to convert Canada's flat-rate old age pension, payable to all at age 70, from a tax-supported plan to a scheme of employee-employer contributions as in the United States.

2. He found that it had taken the U.S. 22 years of contributions to build wage-related pensions to their 1959 levels. Because Canadian earnings are about 30 per cent below those in the U.S., it would take a decade to achieve the maximum U.S. benefits.

Prof. Clark also found that in Quebec there would be "deep concern over the dangers" of federal concentration of powers if a national contributory system was set up.

NO DUPLICATION

What emerges in the proposed federal Canada pension plan is not an attempt to duplicate the American system, but rather a scheme to retain the Canadian flat-rate pension and build a contributory pension on top of it.

The flat-rate pension of $65 monthly is financed by taxes. The rate is three per cent of corporation income, and three per cent of imports and manufacturers' sales.

That never quite raises enough money. This fiscal year, which began April 1, the overall outlay for the pensions is estimated at $755,000,000. About $25,000,000 will be made up from general tax revenues.

The new scheme would work this way:

Next May, when unemployment insurance books are being renumbered and re-issued, those who want to take part in the contributory scheme could register at Unemployment Insurance Commission office.

Contributions would start from employees and employers in October, 1964, at the earliest. The government could then start paying benefits, related to the length and amount of contributions. For those who had no chance to contribute, the flat-rate pension would be boosted to $75 monthly.

It would take 10 years to get the system going on a pay-as-you-go basis. No fund is built up, however. In effect it amounts to pensions being paid today from the money contributed by those who will retire later, perhaps many years later.

After 10 years, the contributions are designed to pay a pension equal to 30 per cent of the earnings on which contributions have been made. But the maximum earnings covered under the plan are $4,000. And the 30 per cent applies to retirement at age 70. If a contributor retires earlier, he gets correspondingly less.

Suppose, for example, a man retires at age 70 after the plan has operated for 10 years. First he would get the flat-rate pension, to become $75 monthly "early next year." Then he would get 30 per cent of his first $4,000 in salary—$1,200 a year, or $100 a month. That gives him $175 a month all told. On top of that again, the pensioner may have benefits from a private pension plan.

How big would contributions be?

ASSUMPTION SAFE

The government has assumed—safely, it thinks—that for the first 10 years, contributions will not need to be more than two per cent of earnings—one per cent from the employee, the other from the employer.

Thus the maximum contribution for anyone earning $4,000 a year or more would be about 77 cents a week.

By comparison with Canada's two-per-cent contribution—plus the tax outlay for the flat-rate pension—the United States' system is based entirely on contributions of six per cent, rising to nine per cent by 1970. This is the system Prof. Clark studied so deeply.

Advertising's third dimension

In addition to length and width, a newspaper advertisement has a third dimension—thickness. Thickness is represented by circulation, the number of advertisements printed and actually delivered.

You pay for an advertisement on the basis of length and width, but what you really buy is the opportunity to talk about your merchandise or service to a specified number of readers. Laid one upon another, a one inch stack of your advertisements in this newspaper equals 300 homes reached.

Thickness . . . or circulation . . . is the dimension that gives promise to your sales message, that it will reach potential customers.

Interest Rate in Canada 'Geared' to U.S. Investment

OTTAWA (CP)—The U.S. government has been told that Canadian interest rates will be geared to the volume of American capital entering this country, informants said Wednesday.

But they added that this is not a new policy and has been followed for the last six months.

Canadian interest rates generally are higher than those in the United States, and whenever the spread between the two interest levels goes beyond a certain point, American capital is attracted to this country.

Informants said that since early January, Canadian interest rates have been adjusted so that capital inflows will approximately offset Canada's international payments deficit on current transactions.

They said that at talks in Washington last weekend, when the U.S. government agreed to exempt new Canadian securities purchases, American officials were told Canada intended to continue this policy of adjusting interest rates.

EXPLAINS CONFLICT

This outline of the situation apparently explains what seemed to be conflicting statements on just what agreements were made at Washington.

One Washington report quoted U.S. Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon as saying Canada agreed to work for a modest decline in Canadian interest rates as part of the U.S. undertaking to exempt new Canadian securities issues from the proposed American tax.

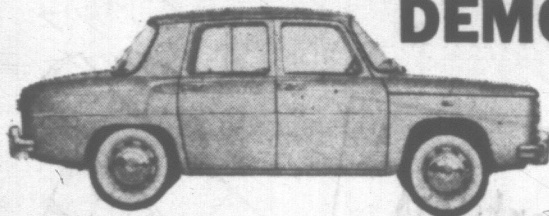

Finance Minister Gordon told the Commons Tuesday—and repeated Wednesday—that no such commitment was made.

The question of interest rates, however, is closely related to the one commitment Canada did make—that it wouldn't take advantage of capital inflows resulting from tax-exempt Canadian borrowing in the U.S. in order to build up Canada's foreign exchange reserves.

In practice, the commitment means that Canadian interest rates can't be allowed to get too high.

Informants said Canadian negotiators in Washington indicated to U.S. officials that in order to carry out this commitment Canada intended to continue its past policy of adjusting interest rates to affect the volume of capital inflows.

FINE SUMMER AHEAD—WHAT'S LEFT OF IT

It may be more than a month late according to the calendar, but summer finally arrived, the weatherman said today.

If the present weather pattern can remain as it is now for another two or three days and establish itself, good weather will be here to stay.

And it looks as if that will be the case. Today's forecast calls for a sunny, warm weekend with temperatures near the water holding around 70 and the mercury is expected to rise into the 80s inland.

Today's 15-20 mph winds are expected to diminish overnight.

Arthur Mayse

As I see it, there are certain basic flaws in Dr. Gordon Shrum's neatly packaged cure for unemployment in Canada. Chief of these is that, like various other hatchings of the academic mind, it hasn't a cat-in-hell chance of working.

In a nutshell, what the chancellor of Burnaby's shadow university proposes is that compulsory education be advanced to age 30 for boys and 18 for girls, and that the problem of teen-age unions be solved by imposing a two hundred buck marriage licence fee.

He has other suggestions, among them that the youth under 20 be excused training only if he can get himself certified as a psycho.

That little beauty, I'll leave to your horse-sense, a quality which even the achievement of a doctorate unfortunately can't ensure.

As for the other, I'd like to believe Dr. Shrum is kidding us. I don't think he is, though. What I'm constrained to assume is that he suffers from an aggravated and progressive case of foot-in-mouth.

Were I under 20 and convinced that marriage offered the only escape from punitive education policies, I'd raise the money. I'd borrow from my prospective father-in-law. As a last extreme, I'd even sell my car.

But since it's an established fact of non-academic life that hiking the price tag won't discourage a determined buyer, we can bypass Dr. Shrum's $200 licence fee.

Now, for the moment, let's suppose that in an excess of folly to beat any since it mistook the Chant Report for the Tree of Knowledge, our education department managed to ram a school age boost through a consenting legislature.

We would require, immediately, additions to every high school building in the province.

Since present teaching staffs would be inadequate, it would be necessary to hire teachers for our captive, malingering and resentful addition to the student body.

Topics of the Day

Preview of the splendor of Saturday's Highland Games in Macdonald Park will be given on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings Friday night.

The pipe band of the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co., perhaps North America's outstanding pipe band, will give a concert from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Made up of champion pipers and drummers from Scotland for the most part, it is unbeaten in competition.

The Powell River band will be one of nine expected to appear in the largest games in the Pacific Northwest so far this year.

With Victoria's Canadian-Scottish, Vancouver's Seaford Highlanders, and other bands from Seattle, Portland and Vancouver, it will take part in the grand march past which ends the games in the late afternoon.

All day Saturday, from 9 a.m. more than 225 dancers and 40 pipers will compete in 28 dancing and 13 piping events.

Athletic events will begin at 11 a.m.

Following the official opening by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes at 2 p.m., competitors for bands in two categories will be held.

A $200,000 apartment building planned for the Saanich Peninsula will cater to elderly people able to afford only low rents.

A spokesman for the developers said elderly people usually cannot get into the modern $100 apartment.

Low rent depends upon cost of construction of the building being born partly by a provincial government grant and public donation as a basis for a Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation long-term loan.

A public hearing in connection with the rezoning of 1.36 acres on Townley Street for the apartment will be called by Saanich council.

The developers, Victoria Senior Citizens Housing Society, also operate Banfield Lodge on Styles Street in the city.

The $200,000 project will contain 17 one-bedroom suites and 21 bachelor flats.

Replacing her hospitalized husband, Mrs. Sebastian Cabot will make an on-stage appearance at the Jerry Gosley Smile Show tonight at Oak Bay Auditorium. Mrs. Cabot will deliver a message from her husband who suffered a heart attack earlier this week.

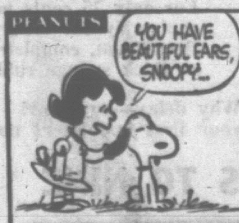

Application to alter an injunction against pickets at the Alberta Meat Market, 1811 Cook Street, was dismissed today.

In a written judgment, handed down at Victoria Courthouse, Mr. Justice J. S. Aikins said the injunction must stand until September when the meat market will claim damages for loss of business because of alleged illegal picketing.

The injunction, granted by Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton last month, restricts picketing to the Cook Street premises. It denies the right to picket trucks from the market while the trucks are making pickups from suppliers or deliveries to customers.

An application to have the injunction altered was made in B.C. Supreme Court here last Friday by Donald McTaggart, representing the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America.

The application was opposed by E. E. Pearlman, lawyer for the market.

PICK OF THE PICNIC at Canadian Services College, Royal Roads Wednesday when HMC Dockyard workers gathered for annual al fresco affair were these lovely ladies. Chosen

Miss Dockyard '63 was Bernice Adcock (centre) and runners up were Arlene Plant (left) and Gloria Davidson. Bernice was previously crowned Miss Firefighter.

New Chief Given Leave By RCMP

Staff-Sergeant J. F. Gregory today told The Times he was "delighted" with RCMP headquarters confirmation he could take two years' leave to serve as police chief of the city force here.

Mayor R. B. Wilson, chairman of city police commission, announced he had received the confirmation.

In a telephone interview, S/ Sgt. Gregory said from Prince Rupert, where he currently is stationed, that he hopes to arrive in Victoria during the last week of August.

Before then, he plans to visit the police facilities at Edmonton and Calgary and possibly Lethbridge so that he can advise police commission on what changes should be made to the Victoria station.

"I'm very delighted with my appointment and both my wife and myself are looking forward to our move to Victoria," he said.

"I look upon it as a compliment and I intend to live up to it."

The RCMP leave of absence will free him until Aug. 31, 1965, to serve as Victoria's chief. At that time a decision is expected on whether he will return to the national force or remain here.

Two More DE's Will Undergo Modernization

Two more destroyer escorts of the RCN Pacific Command are slated for modernization, including addition of helicopter hangar deck and variable depth sonar, along the pattern established by HMCS Assiniboine.

HMCS Ottawa is already in the hands of Victoria Machinery Depot, which also completed the work on Assiniboine. She is scheduled for completion in nine to 10 months.

HMCS Saguenay, now in refit at HMC Dockyard, is next in line for conversion. Allocation has not been announced officially, but it is believed Burrard Drydock Ltd., North Vancouver, has been designated.

VMD's contract for the Ottawa, announced today by the Defence Production Department, is $2,593,015.

The long range plan is for conversion of all St. Laurent Class destroyers in the RCN.

U.S. TEAM HERE SUNDAY FOR POLO

Top polo team in Washington State will visit here Sunday for a match against a local team led by Dr. William Powell.

Representing Victoria will be Dr. Powell, Lt.-Col. Martin Griffin, Capt. Nip Parker and Tony Buckle.

The six-chukker match will begin at 3 p.m. at the Saanichton polo grounds, on Island View Road off the Patricia Bay Highway.

Captain of the visiting team, from Yakima, is Riley Kelly of Kelly Oil Co. He owns and runs the team.

More than a dozen ponies will arrive with the players Friday evening. Team members will stay in Brenta Lodge.

A practice game will be held Saturday.

Law's Inequality Across Canada Cited By Judge

An apparent inequality before the law in different parts of Canada was noted by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court today.

In passing sentence on Norman Bradley, charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency, the magistrate noted that in most other parts of Canada Bradley's conduct would not have been a criminal offence.

Evidence was that Bradley had been living with a 17-year-old girl. In B.C., anyone up to 18 is a juvenile. In most other provinces the age is 16.

Bradley was found guilty of the charge, and was bound over to be of good behavior for one year.

He was also instructed to stop living with the girl.

ALONG THE WATERFRONT

Welcome Ashore... No Questions Asked

By MONTE ROBERTS

The most famous yachting remark ever made was J. P. Morgan's: "If you have to ask how much it costs to operate a yacht, you can't afford it."

One man who doesn't have to ask is Daniel Ludwig, owner of the world's largest fleet of super tankers and other types of bulk carriers. His yacht, the 250-foot Dangginn, arrived today at the Shell Oil Dock at the entrance to the Inner Harbor, to buy a few gallons of oil.

Wednesday owner Ludwig bought a bit of oil, too—1,340,000 shares of Union Oil Co. of California, priced at $100,539,000.

This was done, according to the wire services, as a personal investment. It didn't cut too deeply into Mr. Ludwig's resources, estimated in the nice neighborhood of $350,000,000.

It is obvious that Mr. Ludwig, a U.S. financier of German descent, must know the value of a dollar, or he wouldn't have amassed such a neat little nest egg. Evidence of this is shown even in his handling of the Dangginn, a sort of seagoing, well-to-wall carpeted luxury motel.

The Dangginn was built in Japan, where most of Ludwig's new supertankers (up to 100,000 tons) are built, and where per ton costs are the lowest in the world.

She is registered in Monrovia, Liberia, a country which has a notably casual attitude toward shipping regulations, including crew's wages, working, and living conditions.

However, no reasonable expense has been spared to provide the luxurious accommodation a multi-multi-millionaire like Mr. Ludwig (he's expected to board the Dangginn Friday) and his friends deserve.

This reporter went aboard the rake-stemmed, steel-hulled yacht this morning, with the intention of having an informal chat with the skipper, and possibly a crew member or two. (When the Dangginn was here two years ago, there were reports of unhappy crew members.)

As it turns out, one doesn't have informal chats with Ludwig employees. By some chance, I found my way to the Analysis of pollution recordings by an automatic 24-hour machine on the Gorge shows air pollution has been cut in half since February.

City manager Dennis Young today said a graph plotting daily air pollution at Junction and Gorge Road gives "positive evidence that there is a continuing improvement in the situation."

The pollution scale on the graph shows a number of peaks and valleys but a definite over-all downward trend.

City smoke inspector Sam Mottishaw said the graph began at a 3 co-units of pollution level in February and fell to a level slightly under 4 this month.

Television Eye To Foil Thefts

VISITOR'S CONDITION 'CRITICAL'

Still in critical condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital is Mrs. Mary Holden, Lanca-shire, England.

She was hurt Friday morning when the car she was riding in was forced off the Pat Bay Highway at Weiler Road. She suffered head injuries.

Mrs. Holden was transferred to the Jubilee from Rest Haven Hospital Tuesday.

Ferries 'Lock Barn' As Suspect Charged

Closed circuit television has been installed to observe all tickets sales at Swartz Bay ferry terminal.

The move, apparently experimental, was disclosed today as a follow-up to recent allegations of theft by a former Nanaimo toll-taker.

Word of the electric watchdog installation came as RCMP confirmed they were to lay a charge against the so-far-unnamed Nanaimo man.

It was expected the same TV guardians would be installed at other terminals of the B.C. government ferry authority.

Toll authority officials gave no warning of the action, but passengers can watch toll collections on TV screens in the terminal waiting room.

Two TV eyes were rented this week from B.C. Telephone Co. on a trial basis.

Two camera have been set up in full public view — one watching the toll collectors' cash register, the other eye on the cars that pass the toll booth.

A B.C. Telephone official said it would be possible to put the cameras at each terminal and feed their pictures to a central office in Victoria for monitoring.

USE MICROWAVE SYSTEM The pictures would be relayed by B.C. Telephone's microwave system.

Only other closed circuit network in operation in this area was at the B.C. Forest Products plant on Gorge Road.

A toll authority official said the TV eye is as much for public reassurance as to spy on toll collectors.

"We haven't really got it working satisfactorily yet," he said.

"We will probably move it around a bit in different positions."

He said that it would be necessary to employ a man full time to watch the screens for the system to be completely effective.

Another precaution adopted by the toll authority since the theft investigation is checking of receipts.

HOLD ALL RECEIPTS Large signs now warn passengers to be sure to collect a receipt because they will be called upon to produce it later.

"We don't check every receipt at the ferries because we have always tried to avoid going into the ticket business," the official said.

"But we make periodic checks within the compound."

He said the toll authority is "toying with a lot of ideas" for further precautions.

Meanwhile, RCMP at Nanaimo was to lay a theft charge this afternoon.

The RCMP was instructed by the attorney-general's department to lay it following the investigation into allegations that substantial amounts of money had been stolen.

ONLY ONE INVOLVED Only one person is to be charged.

The allegations were made by Jack Washer, 42, dismissed as manager of the Nanaimo ferry terminal last month.

The civil service commission will hear an appeal Aug. 12 by Mr. Washer against the dismissal.

He charged that a toll collector who admitted the thefts was being protected by the toll authority because he came from a prominent Nanaimo family.

He said that no action was taken by toll authority officials who conducted an independent investigation.

RCMP was not called in until the attorney-general's department ordered them.

An RCMP report to the department Wednesday resulted in the charge.

Ask The Times

Q. Does flying a flag at half-mast mean the width of the flag from the top of the pole or half way down the flag-pole? S.C.

A. Both are considered correct according to Flags and Formalities by Irene Craig. Most common practice is to fly the flag out width from the top of the mast.

But the Oxford Dictionary defines halfmast as a point at or near the middle of the mast. The Department of Militia in Canada instructions also follow that ruling.

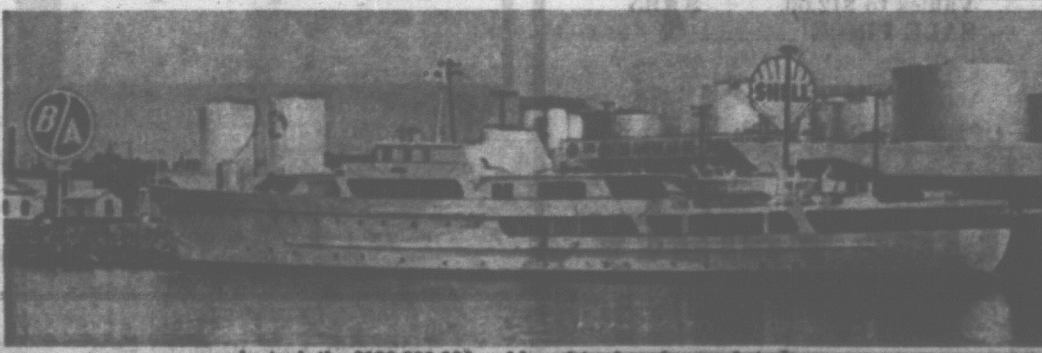

However, when the flag-staff is on a roof where part of the flag, when lowered, would be hidden from view at street level, it is advisable to drop the flag only one-third down the staff. This gives the illusion the flag is flying at halfmast.

On a question asked earlier, it costs 10s 2d to purchase a copy of an English birth certificate, not 7s 6d.

This Tiny Tape Recorder Beats Writing Letters!

By PENNY SAVER

Last week our women's page carried a story about a Shawinigan Lake girl at Vassar who, instead of writing letters home all about her new experiences, talked about them on a tape recorder and sent the tape home to her parents.

This seemed like a good idea to one who procrastinates as much as Penny when it comes to letter writing. So, I went looking for "the makings" for this easy way of corresponding.

And today I discovered a tiny transistor tape recorder that is so compact and portable you can carry it anywhere with you (it only weighs three pounds). It sells for just $19.98.

Tape runs for about 15 minutes and it is excellent for picking up voices, although not so effectual with music. Lid closes magnetically and becomes its own carrying case with the handle on one side.

With this you can babble gaily on about anything and everything in the manner best known to your friends. (Just as they feel they are safely rid of you for a while, there you seem to be right in the room with them again!)

But according to the woman in the shop, her son found it helped him immensely with learning the proper pronunciations for French. And she has another satisfied customer in a doctor who uses it on house calls to dictate his instructions instead of writing them down.

If you want to give all your friends tapes, give Penny a ring at 382-3131 for name of shop that carries these inexpensive recorders.

Parties Honor Bride-Elect

Several showers have been held to honor Miss Sydney Vickers whose marriage takes place on Saturday.

A surprise treasure hunt took place when Mrs. C. G. McIntosh and Miss Susan McIntosh entertained in their Haultain Street home. The honor guest was presented with a streamer bouquet of sweet peas, each flower having a clue-giving verse attached. A flower brooch was received by her mother, Mrs. R. S. Vickers, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. L. Buckle.

Other guests were Mrs. F. G. Greenway, Mrs. A. M. MacKenzie, Mrs. W. Farmer, Mrs. H. Monaghan, Mrs. W. Kennedy, Mrs. J. Bellavance, Brentwood; Mrs. M. Brown, Mrs. F. Dunn, Mrs. R. Grant, the Misses Pam and Karen Bellavance, R. Grant, Joanne and Holly Vickers.

The Cedar Hill Road home of the bride-to-be's parents was scene of a surprise grocery shower given by Mrs. Bellavance and Mrs. H. Edwards. Cream rosebuds were presented to Miss Vickers, yellow and pink rosebuds to her mother and groom-elect's mother, and a blue nosegay to her grandmother, Mrs. Frank Greenway. Also invited were Mrs. A. Lincoln, Mrs. C. McIntosh, Mrs. H. Myhre, Mrs. J. McKinty, Mrs. A. M. MacKenzie, the Misses Pam and Karen Bellavance, Joanne and Holly Vickers, Susan McIntosh and Ellen Walker.

Hear Vows

The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kryzanowski, came from Williams Lake to attend the wedding of Miss Karen Pedersen and Mr. Andrew Kryzanowski. Other guests from Williams Lake were Mr. and Mrs. N. Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. L. Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. B. Palmer and Mrs. Bill Kryzanowski. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Taron of Vancouver also attended.

Clothing Goes to Africa

Recently the first shipment of children's clothing made in Red Cross Women's Work rooms of British Columbia to go to Togo, left La Pointe Pier on the Neder Ebro. The 10 big packing cases carried 7,590 articles of children's clothing to a value of $2,899.95.

This shipment is the first from B.C. to come under the new program of work, which is part of assistance being given to Red Cross Societies formed in African nations who have recently gained independence. Togo was formerly French and gained independence in 1960, at which time its own Red Cross Society was organized.

Education being the important key to the future of these new republics in Africa, the articles just sent over put the emphasis on clothing for school age children, but also provided layettes for infants.

The Red Cross Society and its branches across the nation feel that by giving such assistance now, the Red Cross National Societies in these new republics will be able to establish themselves firmly and carry out their programs in the near future.

Mrs. S. R. Hayden, British Columbia chairman of Red Cross women's work committees, said all groups throughout B.C. contributed to this first shipment of children's clothing to Togo and it took over 2,000 volunteers about a month's work.

DEAR ABBY...

She Deserves Credit

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: How can you call a woman with a prefabricated family a "mother in the highest form"? That was an insult to true motherhood. What does a woman who has adopted four children know about the joy of first learning that she is to bear a child? What does she know about the beauty of carrying a child under her heart? What does she know about the thrill of a child's first cry? What does she know about the fulfillment of actually giving life?

MOTHER OF FIVE.

DEAR MOTHER: Perhaps she knows nothing of the "joy, the beauty, the thrill and the fulfillment" you mention. But don't you think that the woman who asks for the measles, mumps, heartaches, risks, sacrifices and the challenges of rearing a child, with none of the attending blessings of bearing her own, is deserving of special praise? I do.

DEAR ABBY: We have been happily married for one year, and my problem is my wife, when I am driving. I have driven over 350,000 safe, accident-free miles in the last nine years. My wife, on the other hand, is a relatively inexperienced driver. However, while I'm driving she is constantly slamming on imaginary brakes and suddenly shouts warnings such as, "Watch out," "Be careful," etc. I have come very close to having accidents due to her comments and actions. How can I teach her to have more confidence in my driving?

ALMOST SMASHED.

DEAR ALMOST: Unless

your wife is given to hallucinations, her comments and actions are an indication that you are not the careful driver you think you are. Be extra careful in the future, and see how relaxed and full of confidence your wife becomes.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a magician and the best in the business. How can I get a job? MAGICIAN.

DEAR MAGICIAN: You're a magician, and you're asking me?

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if "Disgusted With Younger Women" is complaining or bragging. She said she raised 14 children without a washing machine. Well, I'd complain. I don't think younger women are lazier. I think they're smarter. After all, men manage to provide themselves with the tools they need to make their work easier.

Their Aims and Their Dreams Contribute to World Peace

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Homemakers and countrywomen around the world all have the same problems believes Gerda van Beekhoff, of the Netherlands, international president of the Associated Countrywomen of the World.

"They want good homes, happy families, healthy children and comfortable surroundings. In these things they speak one language, no matter in what country they live."

"And the work they do through their various groups within the circle of the ACWW—in exchange of ideas and in promoting friendships—is of vital importance in attaining world peace."

Interviewed briefly between a garden party at Government House Wednesday afternoon and a dinner with board members and chairmen of the South Vancouver Island Women's Institutes in the early evening, Mevrouw (Mrs.) van Beekhoff told briefly of the beginnings of the ACWW movement.

"It started as a league of friendship," she said, "in order that homemakers and countrywomen might exchange ideas and learn to know each other."

"But as years passed we began to realize there was a need, not only to assist in creating a bond of understanding between ourselves but also in the world. That there were bigger things to do."

"And that the biggest was to help create world understanding."

"Today we work through scholarship aid projects, friendship letters, and United Nations organizations such as the Food and Agriculture 'Freedom From Hunger' campaign, to create this world understanding."

"Today, the doors of the world are open to us!"

Binding together the five and half million countrywomen and homemakers of the ACWW in some 40 different countries in five continents—and belonging to 159 different societies—is a permanent aid scheme in the form of scholarships.

Started on an experimental basis in 1937 when the world group met in Ceylon (and with the first aid going to that country) the scheme was so successful it was decided in 1959 to make it permanent and to call it the Lady Aberdeen scholarship project. (Lady Aberdeen was one of the founders of the world movement with Mrs. Alfred Watt, a former citizen of this city).

The scheme provides scholarships for those from other countries to study and learn of peoples in the western world by attending their

"You know where you begin but you never know where you end," said Mevrouw van Beekhoff, international president of the Associated Countrywomen of the world. She joined a countrywomen's group in Holland in 1937 shortly after she was married. A fluent linguist, she rose rapidly in office and was named to her present position in 1957 and for a second term in 1960. It is with the full agreement of her husband who is a burgomaster and Count of the Dykes (an ancient title bestowed by the Queen in Holland). "He has borrowed me to the world," she explained.

colleges and universities and living in their homes.

"First scholarship went to a woman from Uganda," says Gerla van Beekhoff. "She studied tropical hygiene in University of London and through members of our groups there became familiar with life in English country homes."

"It was a two-way street, you know, for the English countrywomen learned much about Uganda, too."

Since then four more scholarships have been granted.

"In this exchange of thought and ways of living we help to encourage world understanding."

Through its consultative status on the United Nations Status of Women Commission, the ACWW joins with other women's world groups—all working within their various spheres to accomplish world peace.

"We discuss world problems as they affect all women," Mevrouw van Beekhoff says.

"Our collective thoughts are considered and through the decisions of the commission are reached."

"It is at this level that we are effective as a combined unit. But when it comes to working in our various groups in countries around the world, it is better to remain within our own spheres."

"We can do more toward achieving world understanding in our separate entities that we could by combining our thinking and our efforts at all levels."

"There is much that the homemaker and the country women with the big heart and the need to help others can do that members of other world groups can not do."

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Step Right Up and Build Beautifully Shaped Legs

Sometimes women are so imbued with reducing the hips, flattening the tummy, and streamlining the waist that they forget to figure-mold their legs. I think we are more conscious of the first three measurements because of the trouble they give us when buying clothes if they are out of line. When we look at ourselves in the mirror we are more apt to analyze our torso than our underpinnings.

However legs are an important part of our figure ensemble. Of course this is especially true when very short skirts are the fashion. As a general rule skirts mid-calf length are most flattering, but of course, this would be too long for the current mode.

1. The following exercise will firm the thighs. Stand tall with your hands on your hips. Bend your knees halfway down. Go only halfway down toward the floor. Heels leave the floor as the knees bend. It is extremely important to keep the back straight. Do not bend forward at the waist.

2. This exercise will develop the calf. It is also fine for general leg contour. Walk about the room briskly. Lift the heels off of the floor for the first four steps. Lower the heels to the floor and take the next four steps with the heels touching the floor. Again lift the heels for four steps and then lower the heels for four steps. Continue, alternating.

3. Another leg and abdominal exercise. Walk forward slowly. Swing each leg as far forward-upward as you can before placing your foot on the floor for the step. Swing, step, swing, step and so forth. Keep the knees stiff as you swing your leg forward.

If you would like to have my free exercise for the legs, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "Take Steps Toward Lovely Legs," leaflet No. 13, to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Kryzanowski-Pedersen Vows Heard In Local Tabernacle

Tulips, gladioli and carnations decorated North Douglas Tabernacle when Karen Elaine Pedersen exchanged vows with Andrew Harvey Kryzanowski. Vows were marked with white carnations.

Pastor C. W. Fawcett officiated at the service which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Iver C. Pedersen of Lake Cowichan and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kryzanowski of Williams Lake. Miss Beryl Field played wedding music and Miss Ruth Beaumont sang "The Wedding Prayer."

BRIDE'S GOWN

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of lustrous white nylon satin that was styled on sheath lines with a cathedral train. Bodice was enhanced with lace applique. The tiered veil of illusion net misted from a veil coronet, trimmed in pearls. Red sweetheart roses, Stephanotis and fern were in the bouquet.

Miss Patricia Pedersen was maid of honor for her sister. Another sister, Alvida, was junior bridesmaid. They complemented their aqua-toned sheer nylon over taffeta gowns with fan-shaped bouquets of white carnations and Stephanotis.

Bridesmaids, the Misses Ruth Bohler and Barbara Niebergall chose similar gowns in yellow. Flower girl, Julie Weber, wore frock in same shade. Carnations and daisies were in the basket she carried.

Hoverbus Over Thames

The world's first "hoverbus," the 70-passenger Denny D2 Hovercraft, began the first service of its kind on the river Thames this summer.

Recently the craft left the Clyde in Scotland where it was built and travelled south over water on a journey of 820 miles. Its journey took it through the Crinan and Caledonian canals and down the east coast of England. Before setting out on the journey technicians carried out exhaustive tests on Loch Long, the sea-loch in the Clyde estuary.

The D2, on which more than $900,000 was spent in development, is valued at about $225,000. It has a glass fibre hull, measures 83 feet in length and is designed for a normal service speed of 25 knots when fully loaded.

On the Thames it will operate under Thames Launches, which already provides regular river passenger services. The "hoverbus" will make frequent daily circular tours over the Thames from the Royal Festival Hall pier, as far as Tower Bridge in one direction and to the Houses of Parliament in the other.

PLUMP, SUCCULENT, DELICIOUS... I'll let you discover how good hamburgers can be when you add FRENCH'S HAMBURGER LIFT to the meat. I'm sure you'll agree that Hamburger Lift makes the best burgers you've ever tasted. An all-in-one blend of spices, herbs and special ingredients... it makes the meat extra-juicy and flavourful. I add it to meatballs, meat loaves, meat sauce and cabbage rolls. Do try it! Ask for French's Hamburger Lift... three envelopes in each package, with enough Lift in each envelope to season one pound of meat. Costs only a penny or two a serving and makes such an exciting difference!

NO NEED TO CALL IN THE PLUMBER to fix slow, sluggish drains... not if you take this simple precaution: Every week, in every drain pour two tablespoons of GILLET'S DRAIN CLEANER. It's amazing how quickly much builds up in drains. But Gillett's boiling, churning action carries away every bit of this germ-laden muck, frees your drains, and keeps them fresh and sanitary. If you haven't tried Gillett's yet, now's a good time, because right now your grocer is offering it at special savings. So pick up a can or two.

You leave your bath feeling simply beautiful... cleaner, fresher and with an "icky" feeling. No ring around the tub, either! Yes, Calgon Bouquet is a water "wonder-worker". I use it in my shampoo, too... one teaspoonful in the wash water helps sudsing... one teaspoonful in the first rinse leaves hair gleaming with cleanliness.

House of Dior Shows Casual Mannish Lines

PARIS (UPI)—The House of Christian Dior brought back long, fitted suit jackets in a casual, almost mannish, collection for fall and winter today.

Although designer Marc Bohan used some of the lowest-cut necklines in town, his designs still had a tailored air right out of the station wagon set.

Bohan featured shirtwaist dresses—the casual, long-sleeved North American favorite. He even used them for evening in glittering lame and satin.

He daringly used colored wool coats for evening over cocktail dresses. Other evening jackets of satin were double breasted and tailored with lapels just as a daytime suit.

The controversial Bohan suits were fitted at the waist more than has been seen in Paris in some years. The jacket ended almost at the bottom of the hip and was slit up the sides to the waist. Two rows of buttons marched down from wide lapels. The skirt was narrow, and the model usually wore a hip-length belted suede blouse with a plain high neck almost to the chin.

—Both daytime and cocktail dresses and some evening gowns were bloused on the hip-line, giving a two-piece effect.

—Bohan used many tweeds for day in large checks and plaids.

—The big new color in the collection was a dark "Christmas tree green."

—Cocktail and evening dresses with long sleeves, slightly raised shoulders, extra low square necklines that flattened the bust and no waist line.

—Short puffed sleeves and broad squared shoulders on cocktail and evening dresses.

—A revival of lace for evening dresses and for trimmings

Beware! Prowlers At Work
Parked cars with valuable merchandise visible inside have become a prime target for prowlers, Inspector Charles Webb said Wednesday.

The head of the city police detective branch said tourist cars are the favorite ones for thieves to enter.

The prowlers seem to go for cameras or binoculars if they are left in a car where they can be seen. Biggest loser recently was a Eugene, Ore., man who lost about $450 worth of movie equipment.

His car was broken into when it was parked at Memorial Arena. But about five other tourist cars have been entered in the past two months when they were parked at or near motels.

Inspector Webb advised all motorists to either keep valuables hidden inside their car or, better still, to lock them in the trunk.

He said thieves don't usually try and force open a car unless they see something worth going after inside.

City police last week arrested one man for car prowling. He was sentenced to six months in jail on conviction.

Ex-Theatre Boss Ousted

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Panrucker, suave and polished former manager of the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Tuesday was deported to England after serving half of a four-year jail term for forgery and theft.

Panrucker, 48, once described by producer John Emerson as having Vancouver's greatest "artistic touch," was put aboard a plane for London on orders from immigration authorities following his release from the William Head minimum security prison.

Panrucker was named manager of the civic auditorium in 1957. Two years later, he was hired — at a five-figure salary — as manager of the sparkling new Queen Elizabeth Theatre, home of the Vancouver International Festival.

YOUTH ORCHESTRA COMING

12 Hours Daily Drill

As a prelude to their concert appearance at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre Wednesday night, the 92 members of the National Youth Orchestra have logged many hours of intense rehearsal and study during the first part of their four-week training period.

The 92 represent eight provinces of Canada. Five of the 11 from British Columbia are Victorians.

Under Toronto Symphony Orchestra conductor Walter Susskind, the orchestra rehearses from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily.

Sundays have a more relaxed schedule but they are still mainly devoted to music making and listening.

As an example, on a recent Sunday night, Mr. Susskind gave an entertaining lecture, illustrated and spiced with humor, discussing "Is a conductor necessary to a symphony orchestra?"

Following the lecture a violin recital was given by Sidney Harth, Dean of Music at Carleton College.

Among others engaged to instruct the young instrumentalists, are Frederick Zimmerman, principal double bass of the New York Philharmonic; Arthur Christmann, clarinet, faculty of the Juilliard School, TSO flautist Nicholas Flore, and Christine Mather, bassoonist and former principal of Sadlers Wells Orchestra.

This, the NYO's fifth season will include for the first time, a tour of western Canadian cities.

On Aug. 14, with their famed conductor, Susskind, the ensemble will present a concert in Butchart's Gardens under the joint sponsorship of owner-manager Ian Ross and the Victoria Symphony Society.

OAK BAY BEACH HOTEL
On Saturday evening, July 27th, we will serve our usual special Canadian Dinner, and on Sunday evening we will enjoy an excellent musical program featuring the father-and-daughter team of Bob and Pat Seamer, newly arrived from Ontario, and Victoria's own tenor, Rino Everth, with Gail Wall at the piano.

JAZZ CLUB SUES MONTREAL FOR $75,000

MONTREAL (UPI) — A Montreal jazz club and restaurant has filed suit for $75,000 against the city of Montreal and police director J. Adrien Robert.

The suit asks that $25,000 of the sum be paid personally by Robert who, the club management charged, has said publicly that he dislikes establishments where "non-conformist" and "existentialist" tendencies exist.

The management charged that the police director and his force have cost L'Enfer $75,000 in business and prestige. It said that last Saturday 25 policemen entered the club, forced about 150 patrons to line up against the wall and then searched them.

Tropical Birds Die On Journey to Duncan

DUNCAN—Fifteen birds from India died en route to the Duncan zoo, it was discovered when they arrived on Vancouver Island Tuesday.

They were part of a shipment of 18 various tropical songbirds imported from the Calcutta Zoo by Duncan zookeeper Jim Oyen.

The shipment was valued at $200, which Mr. Oyen hopes the dealer in India will make good. The Calcutta Zoo guarantees delivery in good health.

When the birds left Calcutta 48 hours previously, they were in good health, according to a certificate issued by an Indian government veterinarian.

COURTENAY—The crew of a fishboat picketed a buyer's barge Wednesday afternoon in protest to the company's intention to sell fish locally despite the strike.

The strikers, crewmen of the fishboat Pachena, said they were waiting for fish to sell at 17 cents a pound in support of their strike fund.

Nordic Fisheries spokesmen said they were buying enough fish from non-striking trollers to supply the local market.

DUNCAN—More than 15,700 boys and girls between nine and 15 have attended Camp Imadene at Bird's Eye Cove in the last 27 years.

The non-denominational camp run by Island Sunday School Mission is supervised by Mr. and Mrs. Huron Shepard and a staff of volunteer workers.

DUNCAN—Gerald Arthur Lightburn, Victoria, who pleaded guilty in court earlier this week to passing a bad cheque at a local hardware store, and attempting to pass another bad cheque at a local super market, was remanded in custody yesterday to July 29 pending a probation report.

In juvenile court, a 16-year-old Sidney youth, was remanded without plea until July 30 to seek legal counsel, when he appeared yesterday on charges of theft of a wallet and money worth over $50 and assault.

DUNCAN—Detailed drawings for the Cowichan District Hospital to replace King's Daughters' Hospital have been presented to the hospital board by Vancouver architects Townley and Matheson.

The $3,000,000, 120-150-bed structure will be T-shaped. Special attention has been given to features which will mark a new departure in B.C. hospitals. Chief among them is the intensive care unit, now operating in only one other hospital in the province.

NANAIMO—A public appeal by the RCMP here Wednesday for information concerning last October's "lover's lane" double murder failed to turn up any fresh information.

A six-man team under Staff Sgt. J. Purdy has gone back to searching for new leads and trying to determine ownership of the murder weapon.

The Winchester model 63.22 calibre semi-automatic rifle which was used to kill Dianne Phipps and Leslie Dixon at Piper's Lagoon, was found in January under the ice of Long Lake.

Children's summer art classes are being sponsored again this year by the Cowichan Community Arts Council, August 12 to 16, under the direction of well-known art teacher Arnold Burrell.

Classes will be held for beginners 10 a.m. to noon, and for youngsters over 12 years, 2 to 4 p.m. The course will cost five dollars. Young painters can register at Dobson's Paint Supplies, on Kenneth Street.

CHEMUNUS—Two local men, Victor Low and Tei Tai Low, both pleaded guilty in magistrate's court yesterday to being in possession of undeclared goods, and were fined $50 each.

Cadet's Body Brought Here For Funeral

Funeral services will be held here Saturday for Frank Laronde, 22, an RCAF officer cadet who was killed in an airplane crash Monday in Saskatchewan.

Six senior NCO's from the RCAF station at Comox will act as pallbearers at the service, to be held at 2 p.m. in All Saints' Church, View Royal.

Interment will take place in Royal Oak Burial Park. Parents are Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Laronde, 101 Kingham Place.

OC Laronde, a UBC student, was on summer training with the RCAF when his Harvard trainer crashed near Trux, 50 miles southwest of Moose Jaw.

Farmlands Safe, C. Saanich Told

The capital region planning board has informed Central Saanich that proposed "parkways" along the Patricia Bay Highway would not usurp valuable farmland in the municipality.

Council feared the green belts paralleling the highway would use up much valuable land.

The board said the main objective of the scheme is to stop ribbon development on main highways.

NURSE-MAITRE D'HOTEL, Irmgard Liedtke sees to every comfort of guests at Central Saanich baby lodge. Michael tries out new teeth on plastic toy while Stewart takes in the view. The parents take in a care-free holiday.

YES, BUT IS IT QUIET?

Baby Has Own Summer Resort

By MARGE GILROY

CENTRAL SAANICH—Parents don't have to stay home because baby is too young to travel.

They can take a holiday while baby stays at a nursery hotel.

The Sunshine Hotel on Central Saanich Road opened earlier this year with one restriction—guests must be no younger than two months and no older than three years.

Two registered nurses, Margo and Irmgard Liedtke loved looking after babies so much, so they decided to make it a business. Similar hotels have long been established in Europe and particularly in Switzerland.

The two nurses have been looking after children at St. Joseph's Hospital since they arrived in Canada from Germany nine years ago until this spring when they converted their old farm house into a nursery.

For $6 a day the baby receives professional care, food, clothing, exercise and plenty of pure country air, under government inspection.

'BEGINNING OF MANY GOOD THINGS'

CHRISTINE, MANDY CAN'T COME TO U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States has cancelled the U.S. visas of Christine Keeler and Marilyn Rice-Davies, two playgirls involved in the vice trial of Dr. Stephen Ward in London.

The immigration and naturalization service here warned shipping companies and airlines not to bring them to the United States.

WARD:

'I Liked Pretty Girls Around Me'

LONDON—Dr. Stephen Ward took the stand in his own defence at his vice trial today and admitted to being a thoroughly immoral man who liked to have girls around.

His lawyer, James Burge, said the 50-year-old osteopath and artist freely admitted that he lived a Bohemian life and had affairs with many women, but strongly denied the accusations of procuring and living off the earnings of prostitutes.

Later Ward testified that "being an artist, I liked to have pretty girls around me."

"And you liked to have intimacy with them?" asked Burge.

"Indeed."

"You are not disguising the fact that you are a thoroughly immoral man?"

"No."

Ward took the oath after the court's lunch break on the fourth day of the trial.

Spectators threw two eggs at Christine Keeler and booed her angrily as she left the court after giving further testimony in the trial's morning session.

Ward admitted the 21-year-old Miss Keeler lived with him. But he said her stories that he induced her to procure girls for him were not true.

He said Mandy Rice-Davies

stories about him also were untrue. He denied her sworn testimony that he had a two-way mirror in one of his flats. It was only a hole in the wall, he insisted, and he tried to get it fixed. Two witnesses in the case have testified that it existed and that Mandy broke it in a tantrum one day.

Asked about Vickie Barrett, a prostitute who testified Wednesday she had whipped nude men at orgies in the flat, Ward replied:

"Her whole evidence was a tissue of disgusting lies from beginning to end."

Burge asked the jury to "preserve the balance between a man who is charged with a series of revolting offences and a prosecution which is based more largely, you might think, upon prejudice than upon actual evidence."

Burge said the defence would show that Ward lived two lives.

"You will hear first, and this is accepted, that he is a skilled and successful osteopath earning substantial sums of money."

'A Life That May Not Appeal to You'

"And you will hear of his second life, a life that may not appeal to you and quite clearly does not appeal to many people, that of a Bohemian, a man who is a talented artist and who will not flinch from telling you that he is very highly sexed and indeed has had affairs with a great many women."

Ward said that, in addition to the money from his practice, he earned considerable sums from drawing and painting various people, many of them distinguished.

Ward said when he first met Christine 3½ years ago he himself was then living in a London flat and at a cottage on the Cliveden estate of Viscount Astor. He said the cottage cost him only £1 a year—"it was virtually derelict when I took it over and I did it up."

Conciliation Move On Fish Strike

Signs of provincial government interest in settling a 13-day-old fisheries' strike were seen today following an exploratory discussion between union spokesmen and conciliation officers.

The action, in which chief provincial conciliator Reg Clements and George Carmichael met United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union representatives Wednesday, follows a statement by federal Fisheries Minister Louis Robichaud.

He has told the union and B.C. Fisheries Association that the strike is strictly a provincial matter, and expressed the hope that steps will be taken to solve the dispute.

Earlier (see page 29) association bargainer O. J. Macdonald said someone should step in to make the union put a company offer to a membership vote.

Although the federal government has sole jurisdiction over fisheries, it is explained that the provincial department of labor is responsible for the wage-earning shore workers and tendermen through the Labor Relations Act.

No government agency is responsible for the fishermen themselves who seek higher salmon net prices. They negotiate their own prices, through the union, with the fisheries association.

Neither side in the dispute had offered to resume negotiations by noon today, but union business agent Alex Gordon said the informal talk with conciliators could lead to more discussions.

Mr. Gordon said the membership would "never go for conciliation" to settle the dispute.

"The hourly wage workers have already been through that," he said, pointing to an award favorable to the shore workers.

"It was the first time in 20 years this union had a favorable conciliation board report, and the companies wouldn't accept it... mostly because of statutory holidays with pay," the business agent said.

Tugboat Founders, 2 Missing

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—Two men are missing and presumed drowned but another escaped in a lifeboat early today when the 38-foot Vancouver tug Scotch Fir sank while towing a boom.

Missing are the tug's skipper, Ken Hughes, 36, of North Surrey, B.C., and Ken Kasper, 16, of Aldergrove.

The survivor was Don Maxim of Vancouver. An RCMP officer quoted him as saying he was "at the wheel when he discovered the boat was suddenly starting to sink" in Strait of Georgia.

As the steel-hulled tug filled with water Maxim only had time to take to the vessel's lifeboat. He did not know if the others got off the tug. It took him four hours to row ashore and give the alarm.

An immediate air-sea search was launched. Early today an RCAF Albatross search plane spotted a life ring floating in the Strait near the scene. It was picked up by a search boat.

A Nanaimo tug was sent to stand by the log boom the Scotch Fir had been towing.

The Scotch Fir, owned by the Texada Towing Company of Vancouver, was the second tug lost by the company this year. The 50-foot Black Fir sank in seconds March 9 off Gower Point, 15 miles west of Vancouver and settled in 300 feet of water. Her three crew members survived but the wreck was never salvaged to determine the cause of the sinking.

Bill McMasters, general manager of the tug company, was unable to suggest what might have caused the Scotch Fir to go down but added:

"When these steel hulls sink, they go down like a rock."

Boy, 14, Missing

MISSION (CP)—RCMP, assisted by a dog, were searching the woods north of here today for 14-year-old Keith Hill of Vancouver, missing since Wednesday on a hike.

White Man Fears Loss of 'Crutch'

Travelling through Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, Harold Morrison, CP's Washington correspondent, has found that conversation with white Southerners almost always turns to the race crisis. This story tells why.

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The race crisis of the Deep South is like a cancer that eats into everything the white man does—every thought, every action.

He would rather not talk about it but inevitably it creeps into his conversation.

He is terrified by the prospect of social change that would remove what one Negro clergyman says is the white Southerner's sense of superiority—"the Negro crutch."

Military Role For Canada Aiding UN?

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said today major nations are groping toward a more civilized relationship and suggested that Canada's major military contribution in the long run will be to the United Nations.

International peace-keeping machinery "probably represents the wave of the future," he said in testimony before the Commons defence committee.

In a comprehensive survey of the relationships among defence, foreign and economic policy, Mr. Martin said that up to now the main emphasis in foreign and defence policies had been on collective security.

"since it would have been foolhardy indeed to rely exclusively on the UN's fragile international experiment in international peace keeping."

"But the nature of the threat is in transition. Under the umbrella of mutual deterrence, the major nations have been groping toward a more civilized relationship."

"The contest will go on, but its arena will be increasingly in the ideological and trade spheres, with much attention being paid to winning the support of less-developed countries."

PEACE NEW PHASE

keeping machinery envisaged in the UN charter....

"The problem for a country like Canada will be to decide how much of our limited military resources to put into the deterrent forces which will have to be maintained for a long time to come and how much to devote to developing international machinery for the preservation of peace, conscious represents the wave of the future."

Mr. Martin's stress on conventional forces for UN duty is in line with present defence department thinking on possible creation of a tri-service, multi-purpose conventional force which could be used in a variety of roles, especially for the UN.

The minister said the principal purpose of the armed forces of all "responsible" powers has become one of deterring rather than winning major wars and of containing small ones by application of the minimum force needed to restore order.

Until there is substantial disarmament, with a parallel increase in the UN's peace-keeping capabilities, Canadian security will remain in jeopardy.

Defence Committee Invites Physicists

OTTAWA (CP)—Representatives of eight nuclear physicists from the University of Alberta have been invited to appear before the Commons defence committee Aug. 1, committee chairman Maurice Sauve (L—Des-De-la-Madeleine) announced today.

The physicists have said they dispute the theory advanced by Dr. George S. Field, chief scientist of the Defence Research Board, that a defensive nuclear warhead would "cook" and thus render harmless hydrogen bombs carried in bombers.

They say a defensive warhead would instead cause explosion over Canada of bombs directed to targets elsewhere.

Historic Accord Made in Moscow

(Times News Services)

MOSCOW—The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union today initialed a treaty banning nuclear weapons tests in the air, outer space and under water.

The historic agreement was signed by U.S. Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman, British Science Minister Lord Hailsham and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The three spokesmen announced the conclusion of the pact after a three-hour meeting at the foreign ministry reception hall, Spiridonovka Palace.

Harriman told the reporters that they had completed "a very important work."

Gromyko told nearly 100 assembled reporters:

"The end has been successful. Let us consider this as a basis for further steps."

Said Hailsham: "It is the beginning of many good things."

The treaty was initialed in three separate copies — each passed to all the others so that they were signed, in a sense, simultaneously.

The three were seated at large round table and exchanged some banter while the correspondents and photographers recorded the historic scene called in at 7:25 p.m. and told by Gromyko that the document had been initialed.

The correspondents, who waited for over four hours in the street, asked why had it taken so long.

Gromyko replied: "We made plans for the future."

Harriman announced that the treaty will be signed in Moscow in the near future by Gromyko, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home.

viet condition for agreeing to the test ban.

The treaty does not include underground testing because of the failure of the Western nations and the Russians to agree on safeguards to detect violations.

The West and the Russian agree that each nation's scientific systems can detect detonation of a nuclear device above ground or under water. But the West contends underground nuclear explosions cannot be separated from earthquakes without inspection of the site.

The Soviet Union says scientific detection systems can make this distinction and refuses to admit foreign inspectors to its territory. The partial test ban was chosen as an avenue around this roadblock.

It would end the threat of nuclear contamination of the atmosphere so feared by other nations.

Rusk Opens Bid For Congress Support

WASHINGTON (CP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk is engaged in an administration campaign to convince U.S. legislators that the partial nuclear test ban treaty worked out in Moscow negotiations would be a good thing.

Rusk was the administration's spokesman in two appearances on Capitol Hill Wednesday, first with members of the Senate armed services committee, and later with the Senate House atomic energy committee.

After the closed-door sessions Rusk told reporters he had been "encouraged by the reaction," but added that "we have made no attempt at this stage to ask the committees for their views."

Some members of the armed services committee said they were sceptical about the test ban treaty. One of them, Senator Barry Goldwater (Rep.—Ariz.) said he would vote against the treaty in the form Rusk submitted to the committee.

Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem.—Wash.) said the committee's attitude was "cautiously sceptical."

Members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff appear to have been kept in the dark on details of the test-ban agreement almost until it was initialed.

Red China Unionist Blasts Test Treaty

TOKYO (UPI)—A Communist Chinese labor leader denounced the partial nuclear test ban agreement today as an "intrigue of American imperialism."

Chao Kuo-Chiang, secretary of All China's Federation of Trade Unions, made the remark at the convention of Japan's leftist labor alliance Sohyo (general council of labor unions). The convention was opened with 800 delegates present.

"A partial nuclear test ban is a trickery by the U.S. to push aside the over-all nuclear ban," Chao said. "The United States is making use of the partial test ban to ease the alertness of the peace-loving people for the world peace."

"Communist China and Japan are continuing a joint struggle against American imperialism and the Sohyo's energetic struggle against the proposed visits by U.S. nuclear submarines to Japanese ports is giving a stimulation to the anti-imperialist struggle in Asia and the Pacific area."

'West Should Study Contact With China'

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said today the Western world should be examining means of making more contact with Communist China.

He told the Commons defence committee the government has formulated no new policy concerning diplomatic recognition of Red China.

"But we should be examining carefully the advantages of the kind of intercourse developed in the last 10 years with other Communist countries," he said.

The contracts he mentioned specifically were cultural exchanges, greater access to each other's territory and exchange of diplomatic missions.

"We have to give consideration, if we are to avoid war, to the means of providing a confrontation with China," the minister said.

Strangling of Four Boys Described by Ex-Convict

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—A coroner's jury required only one and a half minutes Wednesday night to find Leopold Dion, 43, criminally responsible for the murders by strangulation of four Quebec City boys who disappeared last April and May.

The paroled former convict, sentenced to life imprisonment in 1943 for the rape of a Pont Rouge, Que., school teacher, is to be arraigned today and charged with capital murder of the four boys.

He was arrested May 27 and has been held by provincial police since.

The four boys, who have been found and identified, are: Guy Luckenluch, 13, of Kenogami, Que., who disappeared April 20; Alain Carrier, 10, and Michel Morel, 8, both of Quebec City, who disappeared from the Plains of Abraham May 5, and Pierre Marquis, 13, who vanished from the Foulong public beach in Quebec City May 26.

The four had been missing nearly a month when the discovery of the body of the Luckenluch youth intensified the police search for the others. Luckenluch was found in a shallow, sandy grave by a bird-watcher who saw a finger sticking through the sand.

WIDE SEARCH

Police launched a county-wide search for the other three, and found the bodies after Dion had led them to the graves. The boys had all been sexually attacked.

A cigarette package on which a car licence was written was used as evidence Wednesday night to link Dion with the slayings. David Derome, a 39-year-old farm laborer said he had seen the car, a 1954 Vanguard, parked near his father's abandoned farm May 5. He said the windows of the vehicle were down and a trench coat was in the back seat.

"I don't know why, but just in case, I took the number of the car which was 887296, a black 1954 Vanguard," he said.

Dion's brother, Roland, 42, who was also convicted of the 1943 school teacher rape, identified the car as one he had loaned to his older brother.

Dion was allegedly in the abandoned house with the Carrier and Morel boys at the time.

Dion then told the five-man jury in a three-hour confession of his part in the tragedy. He told the boys he worked for a medical society which was making a study of young Canadian boys. He said he used this camera routine to induce boys to go with him in each instance.

Dion told the jury he had to kill the boys so they would not identify him and return him to penitentiary. He said he gave all a chance to say a last prayer before strangling them so "they would be sure to go to heaven."

Following his testimony, the jury took 90 seconds to find him criminally responsible.

In 1956, after being released briefly on parole, Dion was sent back to prison for committing a homosexual act with a young boy. He was paroled again last Sept. 28.

Shortly before Dion told his story, his case was discussed briefly in the Commons at Ottawa where Donald MacDonald, parliamentary secretary of justice, declined to disclose details of how he was released.

Dr. Guy Marcoux (Ind. BC—Quebec Montmorency) wanted to know who recommended the parole, and Mr. MacDonald said the parole board cannot discuss its reasons for liberating convicts.

Mr. MacDonald said the parole board has full powers to grant conditional releases and has exclusive jurisdiction.

Ghana Urges Suspension Of Portugal

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—A Ghanaian told the United Nations security council Wednesday it should suspend Portugal from UN membership unless Portugal acts by mid-September to end alleged repression in Angola.

Portugal denied there was such repression in its African colony and invited four African cabinet ministers present to go to Angola and Mozambique, see things for themselves and talk with the Portuguese about African problems.

Bypass Union Committee Fishing Body Suggests

The federal government should order a fishermen's union membership vote on the latest company offer, a B.C. Fisheries Association bargainer says.

He suggested the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union bargaining committee was blocking settlement of the current strike.

The association bargains on behalf of most fish buyers and processors on the coast and came to stalemate with the union after six weeks of negotiation came through with a "final offer" that would provide for higher prices for sockeye and chums, the same price for coho and a 1 1/2-cent cut for pink.

The association also offered a per cent wage hikes for shore workers and tendersmen who are members of the fishermen's union.

The union bargainers replied with a counter-offer that was rejected by the association and since then there have been no talks. Each side is waiting for the other to offer resumption of negotiations.

The association accuses the union of prolonging the strike in the face of approaching peak net season by refusing to put the final offer to a membership ballot.

"The government, or someone, should make this union take a membership vote on our offer," said O. J. Macdonald, chairman of the association bargaining committee.

FINE SUMMER AHEAD— WHAT'S LEFT OF IT

It may be more than a month late according to the calendar, but summer finally arrived, the weatherman said today.

If the present weather pattern can remain as it is now for another two or three days and establish itself, good weather will be here to stay.

And it looks as if that will be the case. Today's forecast calls for a sunny, warm weekend with temperatures near the water holding around 70 and the mercury is expected to rise into the 80s inland.

Today's 15-20 mph winds are expected to diminish overnight.

Arthur Mayse

As I see it, there are certain basic flaws in Dr. Gordon Shrum's neatly packaged cure for unemployment in Canada. Chief of these is that, like various other hatchings of the academic mind, it hasn't a cat-in-hell chance of working.

In a nutshell, what the chancellor of Burnaby's shadow university proposes is that compulsory education be advanced to age 20 for boys and 18 for girls, and that the problem of teen-age unions be solved by imposing a two hundred buck marriage licence fee.

He has other suggestions, among them that the youth under 20 be excused training only if he can get himself certified as a psycho.

That little beauty, I'll leave to your horse-sense, a quality which even the achievement of a doctorate unfortunately can't ensure.

As for the other, I'd like to believe Dr. Shrum is kidding us. I don't think he is, though. What I'm constrained to assume is that he suffers from an aggravated and progressive case of foot-in-mouth.

Were I under 20 and convinced that marriage offered the only escape from punitive education policies, I'd raise the money. I'd borrow from my prospective father-in-law. As a last extreme, I'd even sell my car.

But since it's an established fact that hating the price tag won't discourage a determined buyer, we can bypass Dr. Shrum's $200 licence fee.

Now, for the moment, let's suppose that in an excess of folly to beat any since it mistook the Chant Report for the Tree of Knowledge, our education department managed to ram a school age boost through a consenting legislature.

We would require, immediately, additions to every high school building in the province.

Since present teaching staffs would be inadequate, it would be necessary to hire teachers for our captive, malingering and resentful addition to the student body.

Topics of the Day

Preview of the splendor of Saturday's Highland Games in Macdonald Park will be given on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings Friday night.

The pipe band of the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co., perhaps North America's outstanding pipe band, will give a concert from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Made up of champion pipers and drummers from Scotland for the most part, it is unbeaten in competition.

The Powell River band will be one of nine expected to appear in the largest games in the Pacific Northwest so far this year.

With Victoria's Canadian Scottish, Vancouver's Seaford Highlanders, and other bands from Seattle, Portland and Vancouver, it will take part in the grand march past which ends the games in the late afternoon.

All day Saturday, from 9 a.m. more than 25 dancers and 40 pipers will compete in 28 dancing and 15 piping events.

Athletic events will begin at 11 a.m.

Following the official opening by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes at 2 p.m., competitions for bands in two categories will be held.

A $200,000 apartment building planned for the Saanich Peninsula will cater to elderly people able to afford only low rents.

A spokesman for the developers said elderly people usually cannot get into the modern $100 apartment.

Low rent depends upon cost of construction of the building being born partly by a provincial government grant and public donation as a basis for a Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation long-term loan.

A public hearing in connection with the rezoning of 1.36 acres on Townley Street for the apartment will be called by Saanich council.

The developers, Victoria Sen-Citizens' Housing Society, also operate Bantfield Lodge on Styles Street in the city.

The $200,000 project will contain 17 one-bedroom suites and 21 bachelor units.

Replacing her hospitalized husband, Mrs. Sebastian Cabot will make an on-stage appearance at the Jerry Gosley Smile Show tonight at Oak Bay Auditorium. Mrs. Cabot will deliver a message from her husband who suffered a heart attack earlier this week.

Application to alter an injunction against pickets at the Alberta Meat Market, 1811 Cook Street, was dismissed today.

In a written judgment, handed down at Victoria Courthouse, Mr. Justice J. S. Atkins said the injunction must stand until September when the meat market will claim damages for loss of business because of alleged illegal picketing.

The injunction, granted by Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton last month, restricts picketing to the Cook Street premises. It denies the right to picket trucks from the market while the trucks are making pickups from suppliers or deliveries to customers.

An application to have the injunction altered was made in B.C. Supreme Court here last Friday by Donald McTaggart, representing the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America.

The application was opposed by E. E. Pearman, lawyer for the market.

PICK OF THE PICNIC at Canadian Services College, Royal Roads Wednesday when HMC Dockyard workers gathered for annual al fresco affair were these lovely ladies. Chosen

New Chief Given Leave By RCMP

Staff-Sergeant J. F. Gregory today told The Times he was "delighted" with RCMP headquarters confirmation he could take two years' leave to serve as police chief of the city force here.

Mayor R. B. Wilson, chairman of city police commission, announced he had received the confirmation.

In a telephone interview, S/ Sgt. Gregory said from Prince Rupert, where he currently is stationed, that he hopes to arrive in Victoria during the last week of August.

INSPECTION TOUR

Before then, he plans to visit the police facilities at Edmonton and Calgary and possibly Lethbridge so that he can advise police commission on what changes should be made to the Victoria station.

"I'm very delighted with my appointment and both my wife and myself are looking forward to our move to Victoria," he said.

"I look upon it as a compliment and I intend to live up to it."

The RCMP leave of absence will free him until Aug. 31, 1965, to serve as Victoria's chief. At that time a decision is expected on whether he will return to the national force or remain here.

Two More DE's Will Undergo Modernization

Two more destroyer escorts of the RCN Pacific Command are slated for modernization, including addition of helicopter hanger deck and variable depth sonar, along the pattern established by HMCS Assiniboine.

HMCS Ottawa is already in the hands of Victoria Machinery Depot, which also completed the work on Assiniboine. She is scheduled for completion in nine to 10 months.

HMCS Saguenay, now in for refit at HMC Dockyard, is next in line for conversion. Allocation has not been announced officially, but it is believed Burrard Drydock Ltd., North Vancouver, has been designated.

VMD's contract for the Ottawa, announced today by the Defence Production Department, is $2,593,015.

The long range plan is for conversion of all St. Laurent Class destroyers in the RCN.

U.S. TEAM HERE SUNDAY FOR POLO

Top polo team in Washington State will visit here Sunday for a match against a local team led by Dr. William Powell.

Representing Victoria will be Dr. Powell, Lt. Col. Martin Griffin, Capt. Nip Parker and Tony Buckle.

The six-chukker match will begin at 3 p.m. at the Saanichton polo grounds, on Island View Road off the Patricia Bay Highway.

Captain of the visiting team, from Yakima, is Riley Kelly of Kelly Oil Co. He owns and runs the team.

More than a dozen ponies will arrive with the players Friday evening. Team members will stay in Brenta Lodge.

A practice game will be held Saturday.

Law's Inequality Across Canada Cited By Judge

An apparent inequality before the law in different parts of Canada was noted by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court today.

In passing sentence on Norman Bradley, charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency, the magistrate noted that in most other parts of Canada Bradley's conduct would not have been a criminal offence.

Evidence was that Bradley had been living with a 17-year-old girl. In B.C., anyone up to 18 is a juvenile. In most other provinces the age is 16.

Bradley was found guilty of the charge, and was bound over to be of good behavior for one year.

He was also instructed to stop living with the girl.

ALONG THE WATERFRONT

Welcome Ashore... No Questions Asked

By MONTE ROBERTS

The most famous yachting remark ever made was J. P. Morgan's: "If you have to ask how much it costs to operate a yacht, you can't afford it."

One man who doesn't have to ask is Daniel Ludwig, owner of the world's largest fleet of super tankers and other types of bulk carriers.

His yacht, the 250-foot Danginn, arrived today at the Shell Oil Dock at the entrance to the Inner Harbor, to buy a few gallons of oil.

Wednesday owner Ludwig bought a bit of oil, too—1,340,000 shares of Union Oil Co. of California, priced at $100,539,000.

This was done, according to the wire services, as a personal investment. It didn't cut too deeply into Mr. Ludwig's resources, estimated in the nice neighborhood of $350,000,000.

It is obvious that Mr. Ludwig, a U.S. financier of German descent, must know the value of a dollar, or he wouldn't have amassed such a neat little nest egg. Evidence of this is shown even in his handling of the Danginn, a sort of seagoing, wall-to-wall carpeted luxury motel.

The Danginn was built in Japan, where most of Ludwig's new supertankers (up to 100,000 tons) are built, and where per ton costs are the lowest in the world.

She is registered in Monrovia, Liberia, a country which has a notably casual attitude toward shipping regulations, includes crew's wages, working, and living conditions.

However, no reasonable expense has been spared to provide the luxurious accommodation a multi-multi-millionaire like Mr. Ludwig (he's expected to board the Danginn Friday) and his friends deserve.

This reporter went aboard the rake-stemmed, steel-hulled yacht this morning, with the intention of having an informal chat with the skipper, and possibly a crew member or two. (When the Danginn was here two years ago, there were reports of unhappy crew members.)

As it turns out, one doesn't have informal chats with Ludwig employees. By some chance, I found my way to the wheelhouse (about the size of my living room) before being intercepted.

The interceptee didn't identify himself, but he had that first mate look, and he made it abundantly clear that the captain would not say anything, would not meet me, no comment, and isn't in favor of people wandering on board.

However, I was made very welcome to go ashore whenever I pleased, as long as that was right now.

I can see that it is important to have the decks cleared of strangers when the boss is due to recuperate after peeling $100,539,000 from his bankroll.

OUR AIR NOW CLEANER

Machine Says It's So

Analysis of pollution recordings by an automatic 24-hour machine on the Gorge shows air pollution has been cut in half since February.

City manager Dennis Young today said a graph plotting daily air pollution at Junction and Gorge Road gives "positive evidence that there is a continuing improvement in the situation."

The pollution scale on the graph shows a number of peaks and valleys but a definite over-all downward trend.

City smoke inspector Sam Mottishaw said the graph began at a 3 co-units of pollution level in February and fell to a level slightly under 1 this month.

VISITOR'S CONDITION 'CRITICAL'

Still in critical condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital is Mrs. Mary Holden, Lancashire, England.

Mrs. Holden was transferred to the Jubilee from Rest Haven Hospital Tuesday.

Ferries 'Lock Barn' As Suspect Charged

Closed circuit television has been installed to observe all tickets sales at Swartz Bay ferry terminal.

The move, apparently experimental, was disclosed today as a follow-up to recent allegations of theft by a former Nanaimo toll-taker.

Word of the electric watchdog installation came as RCMP confirmed they were to lay a charge against the so-far unnamed Nanaimo man.

It was expected the same TV guardians would be installed at other terminals of the B.C. government ferry authority.

Toll authority officials gave no warning of the action, but passengers can watch toll collections on TV screens in the terminal waiting room.

Two TV eyes were rented this week from B.C. Telephone Co. on a trial basis.

Two cameras have been set up in full public view — one watching the toll collectors' cash register, the other eye on the cars that pass the toll booth.

A B.C. Telephone official said it would be possible to put the cameras at each terminal and feed their pictures to a central office in Victoria for monitoring.

USE MICROWAVE SYSTEM

The pictures would be relayed by B.C. Telephone's microwave system.

Only other closed circuit network is in operation in this area, at the B.C. Forest Products plant on Gorge Road.

A toll authority official said the TV eye is as much for public reassurance as to spy on toll collectors.

"We haven't really got it working satisfactorily yet," he said.

"We will probably move it around a bit in different positions."

He said that it would be necessary to employ a man full time to watch the screens for the system to be completely effective.

Another precaution adopted by the toll authority since the theft investigation is checking of receipts.

HOLD ALL RECEIPTS

Large signs now warn passengers to be sure to collect a receipt because they will be called upon to produce it later.

"We don't check every receipt at the ferries because we have always tried to avoid going into the ticket business," the official said.

"But we make periodic checks within the compound."

He said the toll authority is "toying with a lot of ideas" for further precautions.

Meanwhile, RCMP at Nanaimo were to lay their theft charge this afternoon.

The RCMP was instructed by the attorney-general's department to lay it following the investigation into allegations that substantial amounts of money had been stolen.

ONLY ONE INVOLVED

Only one person is to be charged.

The allegations were made by Jack Washer, 42, dismissed as manager of the Nanaimo ferry terminal last month.

The civil service commission will hear an appeal Aug. 12 by Mr. Washer against the dismissal.

He charged that a toll collector who admitted the thefts was being protected by the toll authority because he came from a prominent Nanaimo family.

He said that no action was taken by toll authority officials who conducted an independent investigation.

RCMP were not called in until the attorney-general's department ordered them.

An RCMP report to the department Wednesday resulted in the charge.

Ask The Times

Q. Does flying a flag at half-mast mean the width of the flag from the top of the pole or half way down the flag-pole? S.C.

A. Both are considered correct according to Flag and Formalities by Irene Craig. Most common practice is to fly the flag one width from the top of the mast.

But the Oxford Dictionary defines halfmast as a point at or near the middle of the mast. The Department of Militia in Canada instructions also follow that ruling.

However, when the flag-staff is on a roof where part of the flag, when lowered, would be hidden from view at street level, it is advisable to drop the flag only one-third down the staff. This gives the illusion the flag is flying at halfmast.

On a question asked earlier, it costs 10s 2d to purchase a copy of an English birth certificate, not 7s 6d.

Reason for price increase is extra handling charges in mailing to a foreign country.

Tug Founders Two Men Missing

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—Two men are missing and presumed drowned but another escaped in a lifeboat early today when the 38-foot Vancouver tug Scotch Fir sank while towing a boom.

Missing are the tug's skipper, Ken Hughes, 36, of North Surrey, B.C., and Ken Kasper, 26, of Aldergrove. The survivor was Don Maxim of Vancouver. An RCMP officer quoted him as saying he was "at the wheel when he discovered the boat was suddenly starting to sink," in Strait of Georgia.

As the steel-hulled tug filled with water Maxim only had time to take to the vessel's lifeboat. He did not know if the others got off the tug. It took him four hours to row ashore and give the alarm.

An immediate air-sea search was launched. Early today an RCAF Albatross search plane spotted a life ring floating in the Strait near the scene. It was picked up by a search boat.

A Nanaimo tug was sent to stand by the log boom the Scotch Fir had been towing. The Scotch Fir, owned by the Texada Towing Company of Vancouver, was the second tug lost by the company this year. The 50-foot Black Fir sank in seconds March 9 off Gower Point, 15 miles west of Vancouver, and settled in 500 feet of water. Her three crew members survived but the wreck was never salvaged to determine the cause of the sinking.

Bill McMasters, general manager of the tug company, was unable to suggest what might have caused the Scotch Fir to go down but added: "When these steel hulls sink, they go down like a rock."

Columbia Talks With U.S. Next Week

OTTAWA (CP)—The new target for starting Columbia River talks with the United States is perhaps the middle of next week, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin informed the Commons today.

He said the Canadian and British Columbia governments have just concluded another "satisfactory" meeting. He did not spell out details but apparently the two governments discussed changes to be sought in the 60-year hydro and flood-control treaty signed with the U.S. but yet to be ratified by this country. Earlier, they signed an agreement between themselves.

600 Prisoners Flee Caracas Prison.

CARACAS (AP)—Terrorists attacked a prison in Caracas today and as many as 600 prisoners were reported to have escaped in heavy fighting with Venezuelan police and National Guardsmen.

At least two and possibly seven persons were reported killed in gun battles.

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Fire, preceded by an explosion, destroyed the Bralorne high school Wednesday, RCMP reported here today. The loss was placed at $250,000.

Workmen were making repairs to the furnace, police said, when the explosion occurred. No one was injured.

Conciliation Move On Fish Strike

Signs of provincial government interest in settling a 13-day-old fisheries' strike were seen today following an exploratory discussion between union spokesmen and conciliation officers.

The action, in which chief provincial conciliator Reg Clements and George Carmichael met United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union representatives Wednesday, follows a statement by federal Fisheries Minister Louis Robichaud.

He has told the union and B.C. Fisheries Association that the strike is strictly a provincial matter, and expressed the hope that steps will be taken to solve the dispute.

Earlier (see page 29) association bargainer O. J. Macdonald said someone should step in to make the union put a company offer to a membership vote.

'Liked Girls Around Me'

(Compiled From Times News Services)

LONDON—Dr. Stephen Ward took the stand in his own defence at his vice trial today and admitted to being a thoroughly immoral man who liked to have girls around.

His lawyer, James Burge, said the 50-year-old osteopath and artist freely admitted that he lived a Bohemian life and he had affairs with many women, but strongly denied the accusations of procuring and living off the earnings of prostitutes.

Later Ward testified that "being an artist, I liked to have pretty girls around me."

"And you liked to have intimacy with them?" asked Burge.

"Indeed."

"You are not disguising the fact that you are a thoroughly immoral man?"

"No."

Ward took the oath after the court's lunch break on the fourth day of the trial.

Spectators threw two eggs at Christine Keeler and booed her angrily as she left the court after giving further testimony in the trial's morning session.

Ward admitted the 21-year-old Miss Keeler lived with him. But he said her stories that he induced her to procure girls for him were not true.

He said Mandy Rice-Davies

stories about him also were untrue. He denied her sworn testimony that he had a two-way mirror in one of his flats. It was only a hole in the wall, he insisted, and he tried to get it fixed. Two witnesses in the case have testified that it existed and that Mandy broke it in a tantrum one day.

Asked about Vickie Barrett, a prostitute who testified Wednesday she had whipped nude men at orgies in the flat, Ward replied:

"Her whole evidence was a tissue of disgusting lies from beginning to end."

Burge asked the jury to "preserve the balance between a man who is charged with a series of evicting offences and a prosecution which is based more largely, you might think, upon prejudice than upon actual evidence."

Burge said the defence would show that Ward lived two lives.

"You will hear first, and this is accepted, that he is a skilled and successful osteopath earning substantial sums of money."

'A Life That May Not Appeal to You'

"And you will hear of his second life, a life that may not appeal to you and quite clearly does not appeal to many people, that of a Bohemian, a man who is a talented artist and who will not flinch from telling you that he is very highly sexed and indeed has had affairs with a great many women."

Ward said that, in addition to the money from his practice, he earned considerable sums from drawing and painting various people, many of them distinguished.

Ward said when he first met Christine 3 1/2 years ago he himself was then living in a London flat and at a cottage on the Cliveden estate of Viscount Astor. He said the cottage cost him only £1 a year—"it was virtually derelict when I took it over and I did it up."

Military Role For Canada Aiding UN?

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said today major nations are groping toward a more civilized relationship and suggested that Canada's major military contribution in the long run will be to the United Nations.

International peace-keeping machinery "probably represents the wave of the future," he said in testimony before the Commons defence committee.

In a comprehensive survey of the relationships among defence foreign and economic policy, Mr. Martin said that up to now the main emphasis in foreign and defence policies had been on collective security "since it would have been foolhardy indeed to rely exclusively on the (UN's) fragile international experiment in international peace keeping."

"But the nature of the threat is in transition. Under the umbrella of mutual deterrence, the major nations have been groping toward a more civilized relationship."

"The contest will go on, but its arena will be increasingly in the ideological and trade spheres, with much attention being paid to winning the support of less-developed countries."

White Man Fears Loss of 'Crutch'

Travelling through Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, Harold Morrison, CP's Washington correspondent, has found that conversation with white Southerners almost always turns to the race crisis. This story tells why.

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The race crisis of the Deep South is like a cancer that eats into everything the white man does—every thought, every action.

He would rather not talk about it but inevitably it creeps into his conversation.

He is terrified by the prospect of social change that would remove what one Negro clergyman says is the white Southerner's sense of superiority—"the Negro crutch."

Travelling through Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, you open the conversation with questions about business, about the weather or some other innocuous subject. Sooner or later they begin to talk about "niggers."

"That nigger trouble down here is bad for business," said a women's garment distributor in Atlanta, Ga. "The nigger women are boycotting our stores, mainly in Mississippi and Alabama. It's them agitators. The nigger was satisfied until they came along."

"Mind you," said the elderly hotel man, driving from Gadsden, Ala., to Birmingham, "I love my niggers. Had some in my family for years. Love them as though they were part of my own family."

"Well, now, you may have seen a picture which suggests I was kicking one of them during one of them demonstrations or parades, or whatever they call them. A picture can lie. I wasn't kicking the darkie. I was merely nudging him to get away from the front door so that guests could enter. That's all."

The son driving the automobile advised his father to turn the talk to some other topic, such as hunting or fishing in Alabama, or the hotel business. The father got the signal. The talk turned to the millions he had made buying and selling hotels and then it drifted back to the niggers.

That Mr. Ludwig on page 17 believes that oil's well that ends well.

Rusk Opens Bid For Congress Support

WASHINGTON (CP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk is engaged in an administration campaign to convince U.S. legislators that the partial nuclear test ban treaty worked out in Moscow negotiations would be a good thing.

Rusk was the administration's spokesman in two appearances on Capitol Hill Wednesday, first with members of the Senate armed services committee, and later with the Senate - House atomic energy committee.

After the closed-door sessions Rusk told reporters he had been "encouraged by the reaction," but added that "we have made no attempt at this stage to ask the committees for their views."

Some members of the armed services committee said they were sceptical about the test ban treaty. One of them, Senator Barry Goldwater (Rep.-Ariz.) said he would vote against the treaty in the form Rusk submitted to the committee.

Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem.-Wash.) said the committee's attitude was "cautiously sceptical."

Members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff appear to have been kept in the dark on details of the test-ban agreement almost until it was initiated.

Red China Unionist Blasts Test Treaty

TOKYO (UPI) — A Communist Chinese labor leader denounced the partial nuclear test ban agreement today as an "intrigue of American imperialism."

Chao Kuo-Chiang, secretary of All China's Federation of Trade Unions, made the remark at the convention of Japan's leftist labor alliance Sohyo (general council of labor unions). The convention was opened with 800 delegates present.

"A partial nuclear test ban is a trickery by the U.S. to push aside the over-all nuclear ban," Chao said. "The United States is making use of the partial test ban to ease the alertness of the peace-loving people for the world peace."

"Communist China and Japan are continuing a joint struggle against American imperialism and the Sohyo's energetic struggle against the proposed visits by U.S. nuclear submarines to Japanese ports is giving a stimulation to the anti-imperialism struggle in Asia and the Pacific area."

a "radical turn toward a better international climate."

He added that a non-aggression pact between the western and Communist alliances also would improve the international climate, but he did not say a non-aggression pact was a Soviet condition for agreeing to the test ban.

The treaty does not include underground testing because of the failure of the Western nations and the Russians to agree on safeguards to detect violations.

The West and the Russians agree that each nation's scientific systems can detect detonation of a nuclear device above ground or under water. But the West contends underground nuclear explosions cannot be separated from earthquakes without inspection of the site.

The Soviet Union says scientific detection systems can make this distinction and refuses to admit foreign inspectors to its territory. The partial test ban was chosen as an avenue around this roadblock. It would end the threat of nuclear contamination of the atmosphere so feared by other nations.

Baby Has Own Summer Resort

By MARGE GILROY

CENTRAL SAANICH—Parents don't have to stay home because baby is too young to travel.

They can take a holiday while baby stays at a nursery hotel.

The Sunshine Hotel on Central Saanich Road opened earlier this year with one restriction—guests must be no younger than two months and no older than three years.

Two registered nurses, Margo and Irmgard Liedtke loved looking after babies so much, so they decided to make it a business. Similar hotels have long been established in Europe and particularly in Switzerland.

The two nurses have been looking after children at St. Joseph's Hospital since they arrived in Canada from Germany nine years ago until this spring when they converted their old farm house into a nursery.

Six cribs and four bassinets now fill the pink and blue front rooms, and high chairs and feeding tables add color to the spacious farm kitchen.

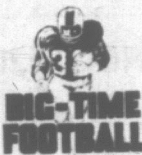

Only children free of infectious diseases are allowed to stay at the hotel. Babies follow the same eating and sleeping routine as at home.

For $6 a day the baby receives professional care, food, clothing, exercise and plenty of pure country air, under government inspection.

Already several American tourists have found the hotel to be the answer to a mother's prayer.
